New Ireland, New Problem
2d Richest Man Advises
Mr. Hays' Big Job
Dynamite's New Work

—By Arthur Brisbane—

Copyright, 1922, Star Co.

Yesterday English troops drilled for the last time in the great courtyard of Dublin Castle. The English went out, the Irish went in, with Griffith at the head. A new era begins. After more than seven hundred years of fighting, war with the English is ended—for the time being at least. The next problem of the Irish is to agree among themselves.

It is hard to give up fighting, entirely, after having enjoyed seven hundred years of it.

Mr. Mellon, secretary of the Treasury, second richest man in the world, advises, as did President Harding, a constitutional amendment to stop issuing bonds that pay no taxes to the national government. Apparently his views on taxes are not controlled by a few hundred millions of his own.

Mr. Mellon says that more than TEN THOUSAND MILLION dollars of bonds are now outstanding, on which the government collects not one cent of income tax. That makes a nice safety cyclone cellar for people with plenty of money.

The biggest moving picture men have succeeded in getting Will H. Hays, Postmaster-General, to leave the Cabinet and become manager and adviser for them in all things in which moving pictures affect the public. They are said to have insured Hay's life for two millions. Combination activity and judgment such as he possesses are worth ten times that. Mr. Hays will get from the moving picture industry at least twice as much in salary as President Harding gets from the United States, and he will earn it. The biggest educating force in the world today is the moving picture, for it carries its lessons directly into the brain, without difficulty or obstruction.

Miss Hazel Pose says she has many spirits living inside of her, including two Japanese and two Chinese. She sings in seven languages, and you can hardly blame her for going into vaudeville.

Those that laugh at the idea of many spirits in one body forget that every human being inherits and has locked up in him millions of great-great-grandfathers and grandmothers reaching back to the beginning. In every child the number of ancestors represented is greater than the total population of the United States. It's remarkable how well we survive such a mixture.

Recently was published in this column an extract from a book by a high English authority, showing that fortification of the Island of Guam by the United States could make this country forever safe against attack by Japan.

Now you read of a treaty that will specifically forbid the erection of any American fortifications at Guam.

If this country is to be told by other nations that it cannot fortify its own land, cannot be trusted to make itself safe against attack, it might as well go out of business as an independent nation.

The important Journal Des Debats of Paris says France wants the world to know that "Paris is no branch establishment of London or New York."

That's more than anybody in the United States can truthfully say just now, for the clever gentlemen sent here from abroad have made of our government a distinct "branch establishment" of London and Japan.

To stop hiccoughs, your friend jumps at you, and the shock stops the hiccoughs. To stimulate a failing heart, as a last desperate resort, they inject nitro-glycerine into your veins. Nitro-glycerine is the explosive power in dynamite.

The same dynamite supplies the cash with which all the Nobel prizes are distributed. It wins wars, it even puts out fire.

A great oil well was burning in California. One hundred pounds of gelatine dynamite, wrapped in asbestos to keep out the heat, was placed in the middle of the flame, and exploded by an electric spark. The explosion put the fire out, just as a jump stops the hiccoughs. Perhaps matter, force and spirit really are all one.

The railroads begin a wage conference. They ask 750,000 workmen to accept a cut from 21 to 40 per cent. in wages. Henry Ford says that the country won't come back to normal prosperity until railroad cut their own freight and passenger rates by half or more. The railroads don't seem interested in discussing THAT.

Drug Fiends Terrorize Woman

PEDDLERS SEEK NEW VICTIMS

Court Hears Story of How Woman Was Lured Into Addicts' Den

Evidence was offered in Judge Wilfred Bolster's session of the Municipal court today tending to show that drug peddlers in this city do not stop at furnishing drugs to addicts who have already formed the habit, but stop at nothing to widen the circle of addicts and increase their clientele.

The testimony came out in the prosecution of William Gray of No. 65 Phillips street on the charges of maintaining a drug nuisance and of having drugs in his possession.

Police officers testified to passing the Phillips street place and hearing a woman scream. Rushing in, they found a respectable woman, whose fur coat had been taken from her and who was being threatened if she did not submit to a hyperdermic injection of a narcotic drug.

The officers got the woman's coat and sent her home, satisfied that she was lured into the place, as she declared.

Gray was sentenced to eighteen months in the House of Correction, from which he appealed.

Vincent and Mary Coughlan, who were found under the influence of drugs in Gray's place, were each sentenced to six months in prison.

They appealed.

Judge Bolster also recommended to Police Sergeant Snow that application be made to the registry of medicine at the State House for a revocation of the certificate to practice medicine of Dr. Alfred Boyle of No. 70 Myrtle street. Dr. Boyle and John J. Hurley were in court on charges of violating the drugs act.

The court held, from evidence submitted, that Boyle was unfit to practice medicine.

GAS KILLS BACK BAY WOMAN

9 Families Routed by Fumes Creeping Through Hemenway Street Apartments

Miss Ethel W. Mountain, thirty-five years old, a bookkeeper, was killed and nine families were driven from their apartments at No. 143 Hemenway street, Back Bay, today, by fumes of illuminating gas coming from a mysterious leak in the main.

A large force of men from the gas company was put at work trying to find and stop the leak as soon as the body of the girl had been discovered, but worked for several hours in vain.

The discovery of the leaking gas and of Miss Mountain's body was made by Dean E. Alexander, a newspaper man, who returned home shortly before 4 o'clock. Alexander occupies suite No. 52, and, when he entered the house, found the odor of gas overpowering.

PULMOTOR USED IN VAIN.

He notified Janitor Frank Flynn, and with him began a search for the leak. The gas was traced to the door of suite No. 11, occupied by Miss Mountain. Flynn opened the door with a master key and came upon the body of the young woman, stretched on a lounge bed.

She had evidently been awakened by the gas and had made a desperate struggle to escape, but had been overcome before she could do so.

Patrolman H. E. Nickerson was called in by Flynn and he sent in an

270 PUPILS IN FIRE PERIL

Quietly March From Peabody School as in Weekly Drill

Peabody, Jan. 17.—Two hundred and seventy boys and girls, pupils of the Bowditch Public School, marched through dense smoke to safety today when the principal, Miss Josephine A. Connors, discovered a blaze in the basement.

Miss Connors was in her office when she smelled smoke shortly before 11 o'clock. Calling the janitor, Charles McCarthy, she investigated.

As she opened the door leading into the furnace compartment in the basement a sheet of flame leaped out.

Shutting the door she ran up stairs and sounded the fire alarm. By that time the smoke in the halls and class rooms had thickened to a cloud, but despite this and the crackling of the flames down stairs the pupils, led by their teachers, behaved as though at the weekly fire drill.

The fire department arrived as the last of the children and teachers left the building.

Fred Sherry of the Central Fire Station, while working on a ladder at the second story of the building, was severely injured when a portion of the roof fell on him. He was taken to the hospital.

Peabody school children have a particular dread of fire, remembering the St. John's Parochial School fire in Peabody on October 28, 1915, when nineteen little girls perished in the front vestibule of the building as thw sought to escape, two more girls received injuries from which they died.

Thirty Flee Lawrence Tenement Fire

Lawrence, Jan. 17.—Spectacular rescues from a blazing three-story tenement at No. 401 Elm street held a large throng spellbound today.

Five families, including more than thirty persons, were forced to flee from their homes, and the damage done by the blaze may reach $10,000. The house is in the heart of the Servian district.

The fire is believed to have started in an overheated oil burner used for cooking in the rear of a poolroom on the ground floor of the building.

The discovery of the flames was followed almost immediately by a terrific explosion that scattered burning oil and blazing fragments of wood through the lower floor of the house, and sent the fire roaring upward.

Mrs. Shaheen Touma, wife of one of the owners of the building, was sick in bed with her two-weeks-old daughter, Alice.

COAKLEY AND SNOW NAMED

Court Declares Attorney and Detective Were Coconspirators in Emery Case

Andrew LeClair, private detective, was an important witness for the State today in the trial of District Attorney Joseph C. Pelletier before the Supreme Court on charges of maleasance, misfeasance and non-feasance.

LeClair testified in the Curtis W. Emery case, in which Chief Justice Rugg had a few minutes before caused a sensation by ruling that enough evidence had already ben introduced to satisfy the court that Daniel H. Coakley and a private detective named Snow were co-conspirators.

When LeClair was recalled for Senator James A. Reed, senior counsel for the defence, asked him whether he was ever employed by the Morgan Detective Agency.

LeClair said he was. Reed asked him if he was employed by the Morgan agency on the Emery case and against Pelletier.

The detective took refuge in the claim that under the law he was bound to respect the confidence of his clients.

Both sides argued and the court took the point under advisement.

CAUSES SENSATION.

Senator Reed's questioning had a trend which caused lawyer spectators to expect a sensation at any moment, but the sensation, if scheduled, was delayed.

The court's ruling that Coakley and Snow, also know as Jack Patron, had already been shown con-conspirators had all the effect of an exlosion.

It was taken as verdict on certain questions of fact even before the end of the Pelletier trial.

Chief Justice Rugg made his momentous ruling when Attorney Ralph H. Robb, Curtis W. Emery's friend and sometime legal advisor, was testifying.

Robb tried to testify that Snow, also known as Jack Patron, had visited him shortly before criminal proceedings were begun against Emery, Mrs. Emery, Mrs. Jennie Chase, Mrs. Emery's mother, and Robb himself.

Senator James A. Reed, counsel for the defence, objected. He said it had not yet been shown that Snow, named by Allen as a co-conspirator with Pelletier and Coakley and the others, was at that stage co-conspirator with any body but the Emerys.

Rugg's ruling followed: "The court is of the opinion that there is sufficient evidence to show that prior to the date inquired of Snow had been co-conspirator with Coakley and there-

STOLEN BONDS IN TREMONT TRUST

Commissioner Allen Submits Evidence to Show It Was Depository

Facts and evidence which Bank Commissioner Joseph C. Allen believes show that the closed Tremont Trust Company was a depository or clearing house for stolen bonds have been presented by him to Attorney-General J. Weston Allen. While very guarded in his statements in the matter, Bank Commissioner Allen today admitted that he had taken the action described above.

He specifically disclaimed all knowledge of bonds stolen in the March mail robbery at Los Angeles, save what he had read in the papers about the arrest of Benjamin Greenberg. He did say, however:

"Any facts or evidence that I may have in connection with the Tremont Trust Company and stolen bonds—other than these Los Angeles bonds—have been turned over to the attorney-general. I refer you to him."

The bank commissioner called attention of reporters to the fact that he was not a prosecuting officer and that the attorney-general was.

TWO CHAIN STORES AT WINTHROP ROBBED

Winthrop police today searched for thieves who entered the John T. Connor store at No. 518 Shirley street, Winthrop Beach, and emptied the cash register of $17.98 in silver while the clerk, William R. Spindle, was at lunch.

Thieves at about the same time entered the store of The Atlantic and Pacific Company at No. 503 Shirley street and got $17.40 in silver. The clerk, David M. Howell, was at dinner. Both clerks had taken the bills from the register when they closed the stores.

LYNN REFERENDUM ON SHOE WAGE CUT PLAN

The Joint Council of the United Shoe Workers of Lynn announced today that it would proceed on Thursday with a referendum vote among 10,000 shoe workers on a proposed wage reduction.

The decision was reached following a report by the resident committee of the General Board of the United Shoe Workers who upheld the protest filed by the Lasters' Union, that the proposed referendum was illegal. The wage cut proposed by the joint council is a compromise to that of the manufacturers, who asked a 20 per cent. reduction.

ATTACK IS LAUNCHED ON STATE'S EVIDENCE

Photographs of Preston's Body Offered by Saltonstall Are Excluded

Attorney John P. Feeney today began his battle for Clarence W. Loud with his address to the jury in East Cambridge Superior Court, where Loud is on trial charged with the murder of Patrolman James A. Preston of Wakefield.

Attorney Feeney declared that the Loud defence would be an alibi.

It was a tense moment in the court room when the defence launched its attack on the State, which has occupied the centre of the stage for two and a half weeks with its accusations against the Melrose salesman.

The court room was filled to its capacity with predominating. As Attorney Feeney rose to outline the defence he would make, Mrs. Loud, wife of the defendant, who had ben absent from the court ooom for about three hours, re-entered. She was accompanied by Mrs. Sturtevant, wife of Judge Malcolm E. Sturtevant, of counsel for Loud.

Loud glanced keenly at his loyal little wife. Her lips were compressed as his counsel began his address to the jurors in whose hands Loud's fate will be placed.

"I am going to get right down to business," said Attorney Feeney. "I think it proper that I should call

IRISH ENVOYS MEET BRITISH CABINET

Discuss Details of Investment of New Regime With Responsibilities

London, Jan. 17.—Details incident to the transfer of authority in Southern Ireland from the Crown government to the provisional administration established in Dublin on Saturday were considered here today. Eamon J. Duggan and Kevin O'Higgins, delegates of the Irish provisional government, arrived in London to confer with members of the British Cabinet relative to the investment of the new regime with governmental responsibility.

Initial steps in the establishment of the new provisional government of the Irish Free State were taken at Dublin yesterday, when a proclamation was issued, announcing the provisional government had entered upon its duties under the treaty with Great Britain.

The Morning Post, which has steadfastly shown hostility to Irish Home Rule and has upheld the principle of unionism, today printed the following dispatch from its Dublin correspondent:

"The provisional government will make a great mistake if it does not level Dublin Castle to the ground. There is an evil spell upon it, and its spirit is quite as capable of destroying the Irish Free State as it was of destroying the union with England.

"Certainly nobody who has believed in that union would weep if the castle should crumble to dust. Its spirit of intolerant bureaucracy, the type of politician that it harbored and the kind of administrators it bred did more to destroy the union than agitators and treason-mongers.

"When the exodus begins, the fastnesses of Dublin Castle will disgorge high-salaried officials who have not done a stroke of honest work in years."

Belfast, Jan. 17 (By the Associated Press).—Owen O'Duffy, Sinn Fein liaison officer for Ulster, said in an interview today he had taken up with the British authorities the arrest Sunday by members of the Royal Irish Constabulary of ten occupants of automobiles on their way from Monaghan to Londonderry who were reported by the constables to have represented themselves as Gaelic football players, but who wore Irish Republican Army uniforms.

O'Duffy declared that one of the men arrested was Division Commandant Hagan, of the Northern Division of the Republican Army, and the others members of his staff. Unless the men were immediately released, O'Duffy announced, he would take action.

WATCHMAN AT VETERANS' BUREAU IS ARRESTED

Joseph I. Grammer of No. 12 Ray street, Roxbury, night watchman at the U. S. Veterans' Bureau at No. 600 Washington street, was taken into custody after finishing his night's work, by Deputy U. S. Marshal Ghiloni on the charge of stealing a typewriter and an adding machine from the bureau last December. Grammer pleaded not guilty when arraigned before U. S. Commissioner Hayes and furnished bail of $1,000 for a hearing on January 24.

HEARING GOES OVER ON G. O. P. BANQUET RAID

Hearings in the cases of J. J. McCarthy, proprietor of the Quincy House, and Harold G. Kern of West Roxbury, in the matter of the raid upon the Quincy House on the night of the Republican banquet, were not held today. John P. Feeney of counsel for defendants, is detained at the Loud trial in East Cambridge and the hearing was postponed by mutual consent. Dry Agent Harold D. Wilson and his witnesses were at the Federal Building, not having been informed of the agreement.

AILED TO COLLECT ANY DATA

The Edison Electric Illuminating Company today admitted that in the past two years it has utterly failed to collect any data which shows why the people of the other great cities of the country are able to get their current so much cheaper than the people of Boston, despite the fact that the information was requested by the city of Boston and the Boston American and was ordered by the State Department of Public Utilities.

The admission was made by Louis R. Wallis, the Superintendent of Sales, who yesterday was unable to explain the lower rates in a score of cities and who today added another score of important cities to the list he was unable to explain.

"Were you ever asked by your company for the material facts in other cities that you regarded as significant?" said Attorney Grenville S. MacFarland, counsel for the Boston American.

"I don't recall," said Mr. Wallis.

"Well, you know we submitted interrogatories to your company?"

"I've heard about it."

NEVER SOUGHT INFORMATION.

"Your officials never inquired if you had that information?"

"I don't think so."

Attorney MacFarland then read into the record another long list of cities, including Toledo, Des Moines, Indianapolis and Baltimore, the rates in none of which exceeded eight cents per kilowatt hour and some of which are but six cents. The rate in Boston is eleven cents.

Wallis admitted that he never had investigated conditions in any of those cities in order to ascertain if their methods of manufacturing and distributing electricity might be installed here for the benefit of the 140,000 customers of the Edison.

"DUTY TO PUBLIC."

Attorney Grenville S. MacFarland, counsel for the Boston American, charged that the Edison owes it as a duty to the public to know just what the conditions are that enable other people to buy their current at lower rates in order that the Edison might be in a position to install similar conditions for benefit of the consumers here.

Mr. MacFarland asked Mr. Wallis about conditions in Pasadena, where the rate is five cents per kilowatt hour.

"They buy it from Los Angeles," said Mr. Wallis.

"Well," said Mr. MacFarland, "let us take Los Angeles, where the private plant sells for six cents and the municipal plant for three cents."

"Their supply is entirely water-power," said Mr. Wallis.

"How much difference does that make?"

"I don't know."

"Isn't it your duty to investigate?"

"Not my duty, as I understand it."

"Didn't Mr. Ives, counsel for the Edison, say it was your duty?"

"I don't know."

"If your company has any man that keeps your chiefs informed, you would be the man?"

"I would be the man."

"Mr. Ives said that if in any other city of the country the rates look better than ours, it is 'up to you' to look up that situation, and to report the condition to them. Now tell us what makes Los Angeles costs different than Boston."

"I haven't learned about it."

"Have you looked into it at all?"

"No."

MISS DOROTHY RANNEY.

INVENTS SKIING AND DANCING COSTUME

Miss Ranney Gets Up Nobby Outfit for Dartmouth Snow Festival

Miss Dorothy Ranney, a charming Greater Boston girl, has invented a practical combination skiing and dancing costume for wear at the Dartmouth College Winter carnival next month.

When she received the much-discussed invitation to the carnival in which the college men urged the girls who were to be their guests to "look pretty and warm, not expensive and cold," Miss Ranney sat down to think.

There were to be sports in the snow and dances at the frat houses. Dance costumes were too chilly for snowshoeing and snowshoeing costumes were too warm for dancing. So, finally, she evolved a combination carnival costume.

SOLVES THE PROBLEM.

Miss Ranney told a reporter about her invention today. She hopes it will solve the problem for all the Greater Boston girls who are to journey to Hanover, N. H., for the carnival.

"Here's my idea," she said. "When you dress in the morning put on a pair of silk hose—as thin as you please. Then draw over them a pair of good, warm woolen hose.

"Next, a pair of woolen knickers, to match your skirt. Then your skirt, a sensible, comfy sweater—not ornamental, but warm—and a tam o' shanter. Thus clad, you're fit for the snow.

"Then, when the Winter sports are over for the day, you go to the dressing room in a frat house. There are roaring fires in the fireplaces and you'll catch your death of cold if you stay indoors in such warm clothing.

RIGHT FOR DANCING.

"So you slip off the knickers and the sweater and the woolen hose. You still have a perfectly good sports skirt and the silk hose are just the thing for dancing.

"The Dartmouth men did a very wise thing when they worded the carnival invitations as they did.

'PHONE OFFICIAL HANGS SELF IN PALMER JAIL

Chamberlain Was Charged With Complicity in Shortage of Town Funds

Palmer, Jan. 17.—Charles W. Chamberlain, for fourteen years branch manager for the New England Telephone & Telegraph Company here, was found hanging to the door of his cell in the police station today by the janitor. He had hanged himself by his necktie and had been dead several hours when found.

Chamberlain was arrested Saturday on a warrant charging him with complicity in the embezzlement of $20,000 of the town's funds by Town Treasurer George E. Clough, and in speculating in securities with the stolen funds.

He was arraigned yesterday and placed under $10,000 bail. Efforts to obtain bondsmen yesterday were fruitless and Chamberlain was in a despondent mood last night.

The suicide has lived in Palmer twenty-four years. He leaves a widow and two sons, one nineteen and one fourteen years old.

Clough was arrested last Thursday. Auditors are now examining his accounts and the State police are investigating. Other sensational arrests are expected.

BROKERS MAY TESTIFY.

The police allege that Clough's speculations were carried on through the brokerage office of A. Judson Young in Springfield. Young is now serving a prison sentence on conviction of promoting shady speculations in the stock market. It is likely that Young will be taken from jail as a witness in the case.

Despite his confessed peculations, Clough is the recipient of a great deal of sympathy in Palmer. This sympathy enabled him to obtain bondsmen and secure his release pending the final disposition of the case. That he is the victim of strong-willed, unscrupulous men is generally believed here.

There is talk of raising a fund for his family should he be sent to jail as the result of the shortage of town funds. The town is not likely to lose through his shortage, as he was bonded with a well-known surety company for $25,000. His trial is set for January 26.

CLOUGH ASKED ARREST.

Clough's shortage covered a period of three years, he confessed to the Board of Selectmen. He told the board that he had worried over it so much that he wanted to get it off his mind and requested that he be locked up.

Chamberlain did not have the sympathy of the townspeople, although he stoutly maintained before his death that he had no knowledge that Clough was taking the town's money. He admitted entering upon business ventures with Clough, but declared that he was as greatly surprised as any one when Clough admitted taking money from the town treasury.

GETS 6 MONTHS FOR BREAKING WIFE'S ARM

"This woman is not bound to be abused because she brought into the world five children by this brute," summed up Judge Logan in South Boston Court today in the case of Martin O'Malley of Silver street, charged with assaulting his wife, Dora, with a broomstick and breaking one of her arms. Although the probation officer recited a long record of assaults by the man on his wife during the past, and recommended leniency on account of the five children, Judge Logan sentenced the man to six months in the House of Correction. O'Malley appealed.

JURY IS FILLED FOR TRIAL OF ARBUCKLE

Eleven Men and One Woman in Box to Try Comedian Second Time

San Francisco, Jan. 17.—The jury to hear the evidence in Roscoe "Fatty" Arbuckle manslaughter case is completed.

Fourteen jurors, twelve regular and two alternates—will sit through the trial. The jury is composed of eleven men and one woman. The alternates are a man and a woman.

The final selection was made after the last man on the second venire had been questioned.

A total of seventy-nine talesmen were examined before the final selection was made.

Just before adjournment Assistant District Attorney U'Ren suggested that court reconvene at 2 p. m. today. Judge Harold Louderbach asked Gavin McNab, chief counsel for the defence, if that was satisfactory to him. McNab stated he was ready to proceed and did not require additional time, but would consent to eliminate the morning session of court if this time was wanted by the district attorney's office.

District Attorney Matthew Brady will make the opening statement for the prosecution. His first witness, he said, would be Dr. William Ophuls and Dr. G. Y. Rusk, University of California pathologists.

Dr. Ophuls performed the autposy on Virginia Rappe, and Dr. Rusk made the examination of the dead girl's injured organ.

HUSBAND HEARD IN LOVE SUIT FOR $25,000

Cambridge Man, Twice Wed to Same Woman, Accuses Malden Man

The $25,000 suit brought by Walter H. McInness of Cambridge, a machinist, against Otis E. Young of No. 74 Washington street, Malden, for the alleged alienation of the affections of Agnes M. McInness, wife of the plaintiff, was put on trial today before Chief Justice Aiken and a jury in Superior Court.

Mr. and Mrs. McInness were married at St. John, N. B., in 1909, according to testimony of McInness, but, discovering his wife had a prior husband from whom she had not been divorced, another ceremony was performed in October, 1917, to legalize their status.

Their marriage relations, McInness said, were first disturbed in the Spring of 1917 when Mrs. McInness remained away from home overnight. Thanksgiving night of that year Mrs. McInness left the house and never returned.

Early in 1918 McInness went to the house of Young at No. 12 Congress street, Malden, and found his wife there, as he did on two subsequent visits.

At the beginning of 1920, McInness testified, Young and Mrs. McInness moved to the Washington Chambers on Washington street, Malden, where they occupied adjacent but not connecting rooms.

On March 21, 1920, McInness said that he, a police officer and a woman detective, went to the house of Young about midnight. McInness knocked on his wife's door. She responded in a kimona, and after opening the door just a little, closed and locked it. McInness put his foot through the door and again opened it. He found Mrs. McInness alone and the window open.

On going to the street McInness said there were footprints just under the open window.

On cross examination McInness said that he did not understand that his wife was acting as housekeeper for Young.

alarm for a pulmotor, which was hurried to the house by Lieutenant Bailey of Ladder Company No. 15. Dr. Charles O. Kepler of No. 362 Commonwealth avenue also was called, and worked over the body of the woman for more than an hour, before finally giving up the fight to save her.

Miss Mountain had been a resident of the apartment house only a short time. She is survived by a sister, a trained nurse, Miss Letia Mountain of No. 15 North Federal street, Lynn.

The dead woman had been employed as a bookkeeper in the office of the John C. Paige Company, insurance, No. 65 Kilby street, Boston, for more than fifteen years.

While the doctor was working on the body of Miss Mountain, Flynn and Alexander notified the other residents of the apartment, fearing that the fumes, which appeared to be increasing in density, would overcome others.

The gas had seeped upward from the basement into Miss Mountain's rooms, and from there had penetrated into other apartments of the house. When the occupants were aroused, it was found necessary to remove all of them and to fling wide the windows and doors to give the deadly fumes a chance to clear out. It was several hours before the rooms become habitable.

'Kid' Wedge, Former 'Rough Neck' Boxer, Seeks Ph.D. at Harvard

THE "KID" IN FIGHTING POSE

Travels From Arizona to Cambridge on Brake Beams, Spending Only $10 En Route

Frederick R. "Kid" Wedge, 41 years old, and former "rough neck" Arizona boxer, has come to Cambridge to enter the Harvard Graduate School of Education and win a Ph. D. degree.

The "Kid" did not travel from his home in Benson, Arizona, in the customary luxury of the college man. With New Year's Day only an hour away he sneaked on a box car moving out of his home town and up to yesterday had divided his "Pullman" accommodations between riding the bumbers and the rods until he hopped off at the Boston & Albany yards here.

He had $10 at the start of his trip. He came by easy stages, and during his nomadic trip was arrested only once, and then was released unexpectedly. On another occasion he just missed being caught and sent to jail for a year or two.

The "Kid," asked why he entered Harvard, said:

"I was born and reared in the lumbering regions of Wisconsin and I have had to fight my way since I was five years old. I lost my dad when I was two and one-half years and my mother at eight. Both were the rough folks of the Great North. I was beaten heavily by my stepfather and instead of taking the spirit out of me it made me a prizefighter.

"The woods knows few laws of fighting. About everything goes and it is really the survival of the fittest that rules. Gouging, strangling and kicking were allowable and after twelve or fourteen years of that sort of fighting I left the woods at twenty and took up a professional boxing career, which I quit after six years of battling and with about sixty-five out of sixty-eight fights to my credit.

IS MARRIED.

"Do not gain the impression that I am belittling boxing. The average boxer is not a 'rough neck.' If you should meet the high-grade boxer on the street you would take him for a successful young business man. The ring instead of making me rougher gave me a desire to improve myself in every way. I came in contact with men in various walks of life, and asked myself, 'Why are they successful?' and the answer to my mind was 'because they have an education.'

"I found out that the real man is not measured by the size of his biceps, but by the knowledge he possesses. This applies in or out of the ring.

"At twenty-six I met the lady who is now my wife. She was a doctor's daughter and a graduate of a university. I was not acquainted with her world and realized the wide breach between us. I recognized that an intellectual comradeship would be necessary to a happy union.

"It was then I decided to give up boxing as a profession, and use the money earned in the ring to become acquainted with that educational world that lies beyond the brute force at the bottom of society.

"I spent six years in a preparatery school, and in that time covered twelve years of elementary education, the years I had lost as a lad. I entered the University of Nebraska and in my junior year withdrew to take up educational work.

GIVEN SIX MONTHS TO LIVE.

"My work as a boxing instructor at Camp Grant during the war was cut short when I was pronounced an incurable tuberculosis patient and given six months to live. I took my wife and son to El Paso, where I fought and won the greatest battle of my life and I succeeded in beating that dread disease to a pulp.

"It was then that I entered Arizona, finished the work for my A. B. degree and graduated in 1920 at the age of forty. I obtained the situation as principal of the Benson, Arizona, High School, which I resigned to come East and enter Harvard.

"I have chosen Harvard in preference to other institutions because of the high educational requirements of that great university. Too many colleges and universities today are lowering their educational standards to suit lazy, shiftless so-called students and ambitious parents who want their sons to have a degree even if they go out of college undisciplined and uneducated. College is not a leisure club, but a place where earnest, devoted, high-minded men receive an opportunity to secure better tools for human science.

NEVER HUNTED "SNAPS."

"In my undergraduate work I studied Latin, Greek and Hebrew, in addition to the sciences. I was interested in the origins and excellences of man's intellectual achievements. In other words, I never hunted for snap courses and worked just for a degree. To say a man has a university degree is not always an indication that he is an educated man. Dr. Eliot of Harvard gave the best definition of an educated man: 'An educated man is a useful man.' I am entering Harvard that I may be a more useful man back in Arizona.

"The man who has been my ideal for many years was Teddy Roosevelt, a Harvard man. Roosevelt was always a friend of the prize fighter. The cowpunchers of Arizona used to say: 'Teddy is the only man who really understands us and works for our interests.'

"Anyone who came in contact with this 100 per cent. American, strong in body and strong in mind, could not but feel that he would like to be a more useful American citizen. For years it was my life ambition to prepare for Harvard, and when I would be tempted to quit the hard road that leads to an education I would think of the gameness of Teddy Roosevelt and go on with the educational battle.

DOES NOT ENVY RICH.

"I have never failed in a study because when a man has a family to support while working his way through college he can't afford to fail. I have no envy for the rich man's son who has plenty of money to spend at college, because the very hardships and sacrifices that a man who is dependent upon his own resources, makes his will power and develops his determination that is really an asset for future success.

"Pity no man who works! The feeble-minded and the failures of life are always saying: 'I didn't get an education because my parents were poor and they didn't have any schooling.'

"There is no excuse for the poorest boy in America to remain without a college education. He doesn't need to be a brilliant genius or have an extraordinary mind. If he possesses average brain, plus good American stick-to-it-iveness, he can win the battle for an education."

OHIO GIRL MAYOR GETS BOSTON PROPOSAL

Marriage Offers Pour Into Executive Who Declared War on Bootleggers

Fairport, Ohio, Jan. 17.—Dr. Amy Kaukonen, pretty girl-mayor, today outlined her platform regarding love and marriage in an exclusive interview with the International News Service. Every day brings a sheaf of letters and telegrams, she says, containing marriage proposals ranging from the platonic offers of ambitious youths to help fight the bootleggers to the correctly phrased note which bears the coat of arms of a fine old Boston family and requests the fair Mayor to "become my honored wife."

"I believe in only one kind of marriage," Dr. Kaukonen declared, "the marriage that is the natural result of true love."

"Marriage and a successful career may go hand in hand.

"The man's salary is a minor detail, depending on the girl's tastes—I should expect a man to earn $10,000 a year—at the very least. I think the love of Dante for Beatrice the ideal sort of love—this type of love will last always, even after death, forever and ever, until the last star goes out."

The recipient of more love missives and mash notes than even the most popular chorus beauty, Fairport's fighting Mayor told with a whimsical smile of one man who telegraphed after three desperate leters—"if I fail to get a favorable reply from you by next Tuesday, I shall jump off Brooklyn Bridge."

"I wired back, 'Why wait until Tuesday?'"

An unsophisticated youth inquired "if there would be any chance of going on raids with you and sampling the liquor?" This boy confides that he is the perfect mate for the "anti-bootleg mayor" because he has taken a correspondence course in all manner of detecting.

"I make a rule to ignore these spoony missives for I believe 99 per cent. of them are tommyrot and nonsense," the Mayor said with no little emphasis.

as the smoke and flames entered her room, and at the risk of his own life dashed through the murk, and taking her and her baby in his arms attempted to make his way down the front stairs.

He found his passage blocked, however, by the fire from the poolroom and going back to the second floor made his way to the rear of the building, where he succeeded in reaching the street. The woman and baby were taken to the home of neighbors.

Meantime an alarm had been turned in, but the firemen on arriving at the house found themselves unable to get near it, as flames were shooting into the street from the windows of the pool room and the lower floors. Two more alarms were sent in, resulting in the response of every piece of fire fighting apparatus in the city.

By the time these had arrived the fire-fighters had learned that five or six men and children had been trapped on the third floor, and with the aid of extension ladders four of the firemen made their way to that floor.

SON-IN-LAW OF SWIG IS HELD IN $5,000

Greenberg Declares He Was Used as "Dupe" in Bond Case

Benjamin Greenberg, son-in-law of Simon Swig, accused by Federal officials of having unlawfully in his possession two $1,000 bonds, which are listed among those stolen last March in a mail robbery at Los Angeles, was arraigned before United States Commissioner Hayes, in the Federal court today. Bail was fixed at $5,000 after his case had been continued until Saturday for hearing.

Greenberg declared that he was used as a "dupe." He explained that a William T. Simpson of New York negotiated with him in connection with the purchase of a wholesale drug business, and that Simpson turned over to him the two bonds found in his possession. According to the New York police, no record of Simpson's arrest has been made in that city.

Simon Swig was emphatic in declaring that he and Greenberg had never had any business relations. He said: "He has never done business for or with me. What is more he never could, because I never liked him. I have opposed Greenberg's marriage to my daughter since they first met. Since their elopement, seven years ago, my daughter and her husband have been estranged from the Swig family."

Mr. Swig lives on Battery Heights, in Hull. Mr. Greenberg, his wife, and his two children, ages three and eight respectively, recently moved to No. 14 Highland avenue, Hull. Previously, for some years, they had lived at No. 82 Orchard street, Jamaica Plain.

The arrest of Greenberg is the third trans-continental echo of the morning of March 3, 1921, when four armed and masked men dropped down the crossing gates at the corner of Alameda and First streets, Los Angeles, covered the driver of a United States mail truck with revolvers and carried away 900 pieces of mail. The loot from the mail pouches, federal authorities say, was brought East to Chicago by aeroplane, and thence found its way to the Atlantic seaboard by underworld confederates of the Los Angles robbers.

The first man taken into custody was Bert R. Chapman of East Boston. He was seized in New York just as he was about to sail for Europe. He was charged with having $5,000 worth of Chicago, Burlington & Quincy Railroad bonds and $5,000 in foreign issues. Chapman is awaiting action by a Federal Grand Jury.

Soon after Chapman's arrest Charles Soloman of Boston was taken into custody but he was subsequently released. At the time of Chapman's arrest, postoffice inspectors from the Pacific Coast said they were convinced that the far Western bank robbers have a cache in Boston.

Greenberg spent the night in East Cambridge jail in default of $25,000 bail. He was first taken into custody in the office of a lawyer in the Ames Building. There, the police said, he was waiting for a loan of $1,400 on two $1,000 Baltimore & Ohio Railroad bonds. The police claim these bonds, numbered 2167 and 2168, were listed as among the Los Angeles loot.

It developed that persons with whom Greenberg negotiated the loan communicated with a prominent banking house and found the bonds had been stolen. Greenberg is emphatic in declaring that the bonds were among those given him by Simpson, the New York druggist.

MAGRATH GRILLED BY FEENEY

Attorney Feeney subjected Dr. George B. Magrath, medical examiner for Suffolk County, to a grilling cross-examination today.

"Can you determine if the person who fired any one of the shots was a man, and, if it were a man, was he standing higher up or lower down than Preston?" was the first question he hurled at the State's star witness.

Dr. Magrath, in his direct testimony, declared that the gun with which Preston was shot was held "inches not feet away" from his body.

Photographs of the body taken after the autopsy were barred by Judge Brown, following an objection by Attorney Feeney.

The uniform and clothing worn by Preston when he was shot were shown to the jury and entered as exhibits in the case by the government.

Mrs. Loud was extremely pale when she appeared in court today with her son, Richard. Mrs. Loud went at once to the prisoner's cage and kissed her husband affectionately.

Court had not opened and Mrs. Loud sat beside Medical Examiner George B. Magrath for some time, talking with him.

DR. MAGRATH RECALLED.

Dr. Magrath was recalled to the stand by the State. He began by telling of the autopsy performed on Preston's body at the North Grove street mortuary in Boston on April 13.

Dr. Magrath said at least four shots were fired at Preston. He was unable to give the sequence of the wounds. The wound which traversed the heart caused death within a few seconds, he testified.

Three bullets and Patrolman Preston's clothes, cap and badge were shown the witness. The district attorney wished to show to the jury photographs which had been made of Preston's body. Attorney Feeney objected that the photographs had been made after the autopsy and showed cuts made by the doctors. They were not, he declared, a fair representation of the body.

District Attorney Saltonstall insisted that the photographs were very important. Attorney Feeney interposed that unnecessary wounds had already been described.

PHOTOGRAPHS EXCLUDED.

Judge Brown excluded the photographs, ruling that they were not necessary in the case.

Dr. Magrath then showed to the jury Patrolman Preston's uniform coat, with bullet holes in it. He also exhibited a shaving of lead and a piece of blue cloth in a bottle.

Attorney Feeney and Edward M. Libby, medical expert for the defence, stood beside Dr. Magrath as the clothing was examined. Dr. Magrath had a large reading glass in one hand.

District Attorney Saltonstall asked Judge Brown for permission to move the witness stand in front of the jury box. The court agreed.

"How close was the muzzle of the gun held to the coat when the gun was fired?" asked the district attorney.

"Near; it was inches and not feet," replied Dr. Magrath.

Loud looked intently at the coat. Mrs. Loud was not in the courtroom at this time.

Dr. Magrath pinned Preston's badge on the coat and traced the course of the bullets. The left-hand side of the badge was bent forward, which Dr. Magrath said was made by a bullet coming out of Preston's body and striking the badge.

The top and left side of the badge was grooved by a bullet with an upward course, Dr. Magrath testified. The bullet had entered near the collar bone and had come out the back of the neck.

GUN HELD FOOT AWAY.

Dr. Magrath gave it as his opinion that the gun was held about a foot away from Preston when the wound in the left shoulder was made.

Preston's coat, cap, vest, trousers, underclothes, shirt, blue sweater and suspenders were put in as exhibits by the government.

There was a small amount of blood on the nether undergarments. The undershirt was a mass of blood stains and there was a stain on the suspenders.

While this clothing was being presented, Thomas W. Lawson entered the court. Swinging a cane and with a boutonniere, he took a seat in the bar enclosure.

Dr. Megrath was shown three bullets, exhibits Nos. 24, 25 and 26. He made no comment on No. 24. There was a wide groove on No. 25, and Dr. Megrath said that, if the bullet went through the body after having hit something, it would make a rather large wound.

There was a groove across the top of exhibit No. 26. This, said Dr. Magrath, showed the bullet came in contact with the edge of Preston's badge.

This ended Dr. Magrath's direct testimony and Attorney Feeney took the witness in hand for cross-examination. Feeney asked Dr. Magrath if he could determine if the person who fired any one of the shots was a man, and if it was a man, was he standing higher up or lower down than Preston.

At this point District Attorney Saltonstall interrupted to ask Dr. Magrath about the bundle of Loud's clothing. Dr. Magrath replied that he had seen it.

Attorney Feeney then asked Dr. Magrath if he had omitted anything from his testimony, and if so, to put it in.

Dr. Magrath said the gun was more than a foot away from the wound made in Preston's neck. He saw no powder marks at this wound.

Q.—How many bullets hit Preston? A.—Four.

Q.—Not more than four? A.—Five could have.

The gun was within a foot of the wound in the right arm, said the witness, and within a foot of the wound on the left side of the face. He added that the gun was about a foot away from the shot in the left shoulder.

Dr. Magrath said he took into consideration the burning of the texture of the cloth in forming his opinion as to the distance the gun was from Preston's body. He declared that was the controlling factor.

Dr. Megrath said turning to Preston's body face downward in the first aid room of the police station could have started a flow of blood from the wounds.

He declared the injury on the wrist could have been caused by a separate bullet and, if this was so, there were five shots.

Attorney Feeney asked about blood stains near the left side pocket of Preston's trousers and the stains were shown to the jury.

Dr. Megrath opened a bundle containing Loud's clothing. He said he had never seen Loud before he saw him in court. The witness showed the jury Loud's brown soft felt hat, with blood stains on the sweat band. Loud's blue, double-breasted coat was next exhibited. Moths had eaten into the coat.

A vest, trousers, white linen collar and nightshirt were next shown the jury. The two latter had bloodstains on them.

GOLDEN WEST SKIPPER FACES FEDERAL JURY

Cook, First Witness, Tells of Loading Barrels and Drums at St. Pierre

William Saunders, cook on the schooner Golden West, was the first witness today at the opening of the trial of Captain Dennis Amero, skipper of the schooner, and five other defendants, all charged with conspiracy to violate the Volstead law by landing 2,200 gallons of liquor, valued at $7,000, in Boston several weeks ago. The trial is before a jury in the Federal Court.

In addition to Amero the defendants are Filippo Bruno, Tony and Frank Carbone and Genarro Balsanno. A similar charge has been lodged against Giuseppe Balsanno, brother of Genarro, who has not been apprehended.

Saunders, thirty-one years old and a veteran of the World War, told of the loading of barrels and drums on the schooner at St. Pierre and of her sailing for Nassau. He then explained that the course had been changed and the Golden West put into Massachusetts bay, where, the witness declared, she was met by a small schooner, the Star, and a number of motor boats. Into these craft, he added, the barrels and drums were loaded. He was unable to say what was contained in the barrels.

CAMBRIDGE MAN SAW NO BLACK CAP' BODIES

Washington, Jan. 17.—Former service men detailed for duty with the American Graves Registration Service in France denied before a Senate investigating committee that the bodies of soldiers legally put to death in France were buried with rope around the neck and the black cap which had been placed on them on the gallows.

John R. Flynn of Cambridge, Mass., and G. A. Bamford of Washington, both testified they had heard of nothing to substantiate such charges. Flynn declared that Rufus P. Hubbard of New York, who had testified that he saw bodies with rope and cap intact, was a "trouble maker" who had to be transferred on that account.

The committee went into hanging methods as part of its general investigation of charges laid before the Senate by Senator Watson, Democrat, Georgia, that soldiers were hanged without trial in France.

Disagreeing with witnesses who preceded him, Richard C. Sullivan of Somerville, Mass., an assistant embalmer with the Graves Registration Service, declared he saw two bodies taken up with rope, and black cap intact.

"Everybody I helped prepare for shipment home was positively identified," said Sullivan.

"Was there any evidence that the heart and brain were removed from the bodies of the men hanged," asked Senator Watson.

"I did not notice."

MILLION TONS OF HARD COAL IN STATE

More than 1,000,000 tons of hard coal are on hand in this State, Chairman Eugene C. Hultman of the Commission on the Necessaries of Life announced today.

The dealers have a hard row ahead of them, he said.

If the threatened coal strike occurs, he said, there may be a shortage and the dealers will have to take their share of he blame.

But if there is no strike and railroad and miners' wages go down, the price of coal will also drop, Hultman said, and the dealers will have to take a substantial loss on the large amount they have on hand.

MILK
(Grade "A" Quality)
12 cents a quart
What Greater Boston Thinks of the John T. Connor Company Milk Idea

It was only a few weeks ago that the people of Boston awoke one morning to find that a new idea in distribution had made possible for them a saving of several cents a quart on milk.

We say a "new" idea. But in reality it was new only as applied to milk. Each succeeding year, for many years, had witnessed the remarkable growth of a chain of 300 quality stores — a growth based upon Quality first, with the economies incident to the Cash and Carry System running a close second in importance.

By their patronage the people of Boston had shown their approval of this system as applied to fine groceries, fine butter, fine eggs, fine teas and coffees. Wouldn't they also, we asked ourselves, welcome the same system as applied to milk?

Newspapers told the story of our co-operative plan with many of the finest dairy farms of New Hampshire and Vermont. A plan which promised to divide between farmers and consumers the many savings made possible by wasteless buying, selling and distribution.

Thousands began to visit our stores on that first morning. Our entire supply of milk was exhausted early in the afternoon. From day to day, thereafter, the demand grew. Sales the sixth day were more than double those of the first.

Other milk prices dropped, in an effort to compete —but none, as far as we know, reached our price on milk of similar quality. That is the important point to consider—Quality.

Our milk is Grade A, every quart of it. Pasteurized and sealed in bottles—up in the country—within a few hours of milking. On sale at our stores the next morning. On your table hours fresher than many milks that are delivered to your door.

Even if we should charge you 17 or 18 cents a quart—as some are still doing for their better grades —we couldn't supply you purer, fresher, better milk than our stores are now selling for 12 cents a quart.

We thank the people of Greater Boston for the support they have given our Crusade into the realms of the milk industry. If constantly increasing demand is an indication of popular gratitude, we feel amply repaid for our successful efforts in bringing down to a fair price level a necessity to life and health, and there is none more important in all the world of foods.

Finds Retail Trade Has Too Many Frills

"Adds Tremendously" to Cost, Report to Massachusetts Legislature Declares

BOSTON BUREAU
DAILY NEWS RECORD

Boston, Jan. 10.—"Too many frills in the conduct of retail business which add tremendously to the cost placed on all consumers," the State Commission on the Necessaries of Life declares in its report to the Massachusetts Legislature. The report deals with the power situation as it affects the Bay State, with labor, "profiteering," "non-productive expenses," etc., making recommendations for considerations by the legislature.

Retailers' Methods

"The commission believes that the principal factors in this situation are the methods of retail dealers.

"(a) Most retail dealers do not always treat their stock as a unit and determine sales prices by replacement costs; this is the practice followed by wholesalers in most commodities. Retailers take the cost of a particular article and place a profit thereon. It was this condition which led to the consumers' strike.

"(b) The average retailer does not conduct his business with any great degree of efficiency.

"(c) There are too many frills in the conduct of retail business which add tremendously to the cost placed upon all consumers. Under present conditions there are many families who cannot pay for elaborate service; thrifty people do not desire it.

"The foregoing does not apply to all retail merchants, as the commission has found many progressive and intelligent retailers. However, the lack of initiative and understanding of fundamental conditions by a majority of retailers is a contributing factor in business stagnation and is retarding the lowering of prices to a marked extent."

The commission since its creation has investigated many different lines of business and during the past year has been particularly impressed by "certain factors which indicate an unsound and unhealthy business condition. For example: In one line of business it was not uncommon to find that overhead expense and non-productive labor consumed 40 per cent. of the total receipts; in another line, such an item as 'Good-will' ran as high as 75 per cent. of the value behind the capital stock issued. The facts which are known to the public lead to suspicion and lack of confidence, not only against the particular industry about which they are known, but against all business, as it is apparently natural to suspect all business of being as bad as the worst.

"The abnormal profits which some concerns find necessary on account of over-capitalization, overhead expense or non-productive labor prevent efficiency in productive labor, and cause unduly high wages. Profiteering and inefficiency by employers set an example which is always copied by employes. Such conditions tend to lower efficiency in other industries. Labor will not stand for a cut in its return when it knows that over-capitalization and non-productive labor are eating up the real and legitimate profits of the business."

JOYOUS THRONG SEE IRISH TAKE DUBLIN CASTLE

Michael Collins Hailed as Idol as Free State Rules Historic Site

By DENIS O'CONNELL,
Universal Service Staff Correspondent.
Special Cable Dispatch.

Dublin, Jan. 17.—Only once before have I ever seen Mick Collins looking as he looked when he completed the task of taking over the administration of Dublin Castle. That was the night when he went to Downing Street to sign the treaty.

That night his head was down. Mike is usually gay and seldom loses his smile—he smiled even while fighting the big men across the table. But here, when he left the privy council chamber, Mick's smile had left him and his head was down.

The camera men asked him to pose, but with a wave of his hand he threw them aside. Mick was thinking—and thinking deeply.

Mick—who Griffith said was the man who had won the war; as one born in the same part of the country, Cork, and of the same stock—I can guess what Mick was thinking about.

THINKING OF MANY WHO DIED.

He was thinking of all the brave men who had died to get this Bastile down. In Dublin Castle yard he passed Bermingham Tower, where Hugh O'Neil was imprisoned by Queen Elizabeth and from where he escaped, and where had been imprisoned Robert Emmett and Wolfe Tone and hundreds of others who gave their lives for Ireland.

Collins probably thought of these historic episodes, as did the other Irish people who were gathered around the gates of the castle when he left.

From early in the morning thousands assembled around the gates, watching the British soldiers tearing down the barricades. At 9 o'clock for the first time in two years the courtyard gates swung wide open.

Rich and poor, in furs and rags, Dublin women stood shoulder to shoulder. Word went around that Collins would arrive at noon. This cheered the crowd somewhat, but noon struck and no Collins came.

COLLINS IDOLIZED BY CROWD.

Then it was said that he would come at 1:30. At 1:25 it was learned that Viceroy Fitzalan had left the Viceregal Lodge and that Collins and party had left the Mansion House to meet him. Along the streets as the members of the Irish Provisional Government passed the people frantically tried, even sometimes at the risk of their lives, to get close to their idol—to get a glimpse of "Mick himself," as the Dubliners call him. Men, women and children frantically rushed for his car, but the automobiles never slackened to receive any ovation.

With Mick was his ever faithful Joe Reilly, who has watched over him night and day, sleeping at his bedroom dorr in all the years Mick has been "on the run." Joe was the first to follow him through the General Prisons Board room, which he had to pass before he could reach the privy council chamber.

Twelve months ago the British government offered $200,000 to get Mick into that prison board room. Now he comes of his own free will, but not as a prisoner. Now he came as dictator.

Collins had a formal interview with Lord Fitzalan and formally took over the reins of government. All that now remains to be done is to complete the formal resolution of the privy council in London to make everything O. K.

BRITISH FLAGS WITHDRAWN.

When Mick left the Castle there was no limit to the joy of the people. They refused to clear the way for the autos. They crowded around and cheered again and again in spite of the efforts of the police. The crowds swarmed the Castle yard, overriding all objections, they had their cheers and greetings for Mick and eventually left in a quiet and orderly manner.

Then the Black and Tans were leaving with flags flying, but they lowered their banners at calls from the spectators and all were happy at the "good will" act.

AUCTION CALLED OFF AS MRS. HANNA PAYS TAXES

Pittsfield, Jan. 17.—Mrs. Molly Covington Hanna, fourth divorced wife of Dan R. Hanna, paid her 1921 taxes, amounting to $4,546.75 on her thousand acre Brier estate at Stockbridge, and it was not sold at auction as advertised by Michael Flynn, tax collector.

MRS HANNA

The Eden Hill estate of Mrs. Mary R. Mayer, wife of Charles R. Mayer of Washington, was also saved from auction by payment of $4,794.24, representing the 1921 taxes.

BANNER SEASON FOR TRAPPERS' PROFIT SEEN

Saranac Lake, N. Y., Jan. 17.—Fur buyers in the Adirondacks declare the present season will be marked by the largest harvest of pelts on record, with the trappers receiving approximately $1,500,000 for their catch. In 1919, the banner year until now, when unusually high prices were paid for furs, the trappers realized more than $1,000,000.

Last year prices declined appreciably, owing to the fact that warehouses were overstocked. At that time the trappers were urged to forego a season in order to give the animals a chance to increase and for the added purpose of giving the market an opportunity to be unloaded. This year, with prices higher and demand greater, the trappers were advised to get as many pelts as possible.

Furriers say the skins are being brought in in great quantities. The number of mink, skunk and fox pelts already received is far above normal.

AGENT WILSON ON FIVE RAIDS IN WORCESTER

Worcester, Jan. 17.—Prohibition Enforcement Agent Harold D. Wilson swooped down on this city for five raids, two of which were successful. Pasquale Albano and Arthur Sarno were arrested in a store on South Main street, where Wilson and his men found moonshine disguised as gin and evidences that a party of men had been drinking there. Mrs. Rose Botta of Union street was summoned to court and a quantity of moonshine and wine was seized at her home.

GARMENT STRIKE OFF, 55,000 BACK AT WORK

New York, Jan. 17.—Fifty-five thousand garment workers of the Metropolitan District today resumed work in hundreds of shops which had been closed since November, when the workers struck in protest against institution of a piece work system. The tie-up came to an end when attorneys for the Cloak, Suit and Skirt Manufacturers' Protective Association notified the workmen that the shops would reopen today in obedience to an order of the State Supreme Court. The strikers voted to go back to work.

CHELSEA MAN ACCUSED OF STEALING DRAFTS

Charged with the theft of more than $400,000 worth of government ration commutation and transportation drafts from the War Risk Insurance office in New York, Russell P. Jonah of Chelsea has been arrested by the Chicago authorities. The drafts were found in a suitcase belonging to the accused man. Jonah, who is thirty years old and formerly lived at No. [illegible] Congress avenue, Chelsea, explained to the Chicago police that he had obtained the drafts when he called for a bundle he had left at the Grand Central Station, New York, last Summer. The package containing the drafts had been given to him by mistake, he declared.

GLOBE THEATRE—S. H. Bunze of the Lightning Photoplay Company will personally present Oscar Apfel's screen version of "Ten Nights in a Barroom" at the Globe Theatre for a limited engagement, starting next Monday. This is one of the greatest of the famous old dramas in the history of the American stage transferred to the silver sheet. It is said to have cost a small fortune to produce and to have taken over a year to make, but those who have been fortunate enough to see it state that it is well worth all the trouble and expense.

SELWYN THEATRE—Seats were placed on sale this morning at the Selwyn Theatre, where the engagement of Helen MacKellar in "Back Pay" begins next Monday night. "Back Pay" is the play by Fannie Hurst, which comes to Boston direct from New York.

BOSTON THEATRE—The actual making of a motion picture production on the stage, with Boston people as the actors, and "The Girl From Porcupine," James Oliver Curwood's latest photoplay, divide the headline honors at the Boston Theatre this week.

'YANKEE' FILM ENTERTAINING COMEDY

By FRIEDA DAVIS.

One of the things it's hard to forgive Douglas Fairbanks for is that he overlooked "A Connecticut Yankee in King Arthur's Court." It seems to have been tailor-made for him. This should not be taken as adverse criticism for the way the role was handled by Harry Myers in that film by Fox, which opened at Tremont Temple last night. If Fairbanks didn't do it, I'm glad Myers did. He has given us a splendid piece of comedy work.

For a thorough good time see Fox's production of "A Connecticut Yankee." It is one of the most entertaining comedies I have seen. Bernard McConville and Emmet J. Flynn, the scenarist and director respectively, have worked out a hilarious version of Mark Twain's famous story. Harry Myers has backed them up capitally. The supporting cast was very good, but Mr. Myers' work deserves space by itself, for in view of the role he played he was the entire thing.

STORY BROUGHT UP TO DATE.

The story has been brought up to date, Twain having written it, I understand, forty years ago. In place of the bicycles with which the author endowed the followers of Sir Launcelot, Flynn has given them a flock of motorcycles. The effect of these knights in full armor speeding ahead is bizarre, to say the least. It is the bizarre throughout that is the keynote of the picture.

It is, for the most part, the titles of Mr. McConville that draw the laugh. Prohibition is overworked a trifle, possibly, while punning seems to have been his ultimate goal. "Finding a package of Camels was a Lucky Strike for him," for example, or the Yankee's remark that "this knight life is killing me." Not exactly subtle humor, perhaps, but it serves its purpose and the audience yesterday roared with glee.

The story opens with Martin, a Connecticut hero, and his love affair. He is in love with his mother's secretary, while he has been worked into an engagement with an ambitious creature who "is determined to marry money and doesn't care what his other name is"—I quote from Mr. McConville. It is hard not to, having seen the film.

WORKS MIRACLES.

Martin gets into a fight with a burglar and is knocked unconscious as he falls against a table. When he comes to, he is being prodded by one of the knights of King Arthur's round table. From then on he works twentieth century miracles into a sixth century world. His haughty fiancee and the little secretary both have prominent roles in Camelot, the secretary winning by a big margin. When the Yankee awakes from his dream he hustles the secretary into a sudden elopement.

While California offers such scenery as Flynn has found for the backgrounds of Camelot, there need be no worry that Hollywood will cease to be the centre of film production. The winding mountain roads and the hills back of the castle are remarkable. It would savor of a travel picture if the action weren't so fast and furious.

Pauline Starke is seen as the little secretary. Miss Starke has done an uncommonly good piece of work here. She has a wistful, unusual face that arrests attention. Rosemary Theby is given one of her usual roles, that of a hard-hearted queen, and she plays it as usual, attractively but coldly.

WALDRON'S CASINO—One of the most gorgeous and entertaining burlesque productions seen in Boston this season was presented by Dave Marion's Own Company at Waldron's Casino yesterday. "The Land of Impossible" was the name of the two-act fantastic revue which made up the show. The settings are the best effort of P. Dodd Ackerman, and the costumes are dazzling in their colors and fashions. Throughout the entire two acts the show was a delight to both eye and ear. Mr. Marion has always been famed for the calibre of the performers when he assembles in his company. This season's aggregation compares favorably with any of his famous companies of past years.

GORDON'S OLYMPIA — Several spectacular acts of striking novelty were presented on the vaudeville program at Gordon's Olympia yesterday. The bill was headed by a musical act, "The Four Musketeers," presenting Peggy Parker and four other musicians, and included Henry Melody's Sextette, a presentation of entrancing harmony by six pretty girls. There were several other acts of exceptional merit.

GLOBE THEATRE—A triple bill of superlative merit was offered at Loew's Globe Theatre yesterday with a continuous policy, beginning at 10:30 a. m. and concluding at 10:30 p. m. It comprises three of the foremost screen celebrities and will be retained for a single week only. The program offers "The Miracle Man," Douglas Fairbanks in "When the Clouds Roll By" and Charlie Chaplin in "A Dog's Life," a photoplay that has little difficulty in evoking much laughter.

SCOLLAY SQUARE OLYMPIA—Patrons of Gordon's Scollay Square Olympia Theatre yesterday witnessed a novel and interesting program of vaudeville, headed by the spectacular act, Steed's Syncopated Sextette. This novel act presented six jazz musicians headed by Ralph Hertlein and Anna Mae Bell.

GORDON'S STRAND—Betty Compson, the new Paramount star, was seen to fine advantage in "The Little Minister," a splendid Paramount picture, produced by Penrhyn Stanlaws, on its first presentation at Gordon's Strand Theatre, Upham's Corner, last night.

CODMAN SQUARE THEATRE—The wonder picture of all time, "Over the Hill," from the famous poem by Will Carleton, a story of mother love divine, is [illegible] shown all this week.

Plays That Remain

PLYMOUTH THEATRE— William Hodge continues to attract his usual large audiences at the Plymouth Theatre in his new comedy, "Dog Love," which furnishes much wholesome fun to all. Seats are now selling three weeks in advance, which indicates a long run. Mr. Hodge entered upon his fourth week last night, with usual matinees on Thursday and Saturday.

SHUBERT THEATRE—The celebration of the 100th performance in Boston of "Irene" at the Shubert Theatre last evening, and the distribution of souvenirs observing the event, brought out an audience that filled the house to its utmost capacity. "Irene" continues to hold the long-lived popularity record.

HOLLIS STREET THEATRE— The A. L. Erlanger and David Belasco production of "The Wandering Jew" began its final week at the Hollis Street Theatre last evening. A most impressive and powerful drama is this play by E. Temple Thurston, the famous English playwright.

WILBUR THEATRE— "Red Pepper" started its second week at the Wilbur Theatre last night, and in it McIntyre and Heath, those perennial knights of the blackface, made merry to the jollification of a large and appreciative audience.

COLONIAL THEATRE—No diminishment appears to the popularity of Fred Stone in his newest musical extravaganza, "Tip-Top," which began the seventh week of the Boston engagement at the Colonial Theatre last evening.

TREMONT THEATRE— D. W. Griffith's screen spectacle, "Orphans of the Storm," continues its popular way at the Tremont Theatre, playing to crowded houses twice each day.

SELWYN THEATRE—"Happy-Go-Lucky" began its final week at the Selwyn Theatre last night.

MAJESTIC BILL OF HEADLINE CALIBRE

This week's offering at the Majestic Theatre is in truth a bill of headliners. The program is especially well balanced, including in its personnel, stars from the concert, musical comedy stage and top notchers of vaudeville.

Carl McCullough made his Boston vaudeville debut. He has a good voice and knows how to use it. His act, interspersed with travesties and chatter was received with encore after encore.

Marie Stoddard, another Boston favorite, demonstrated her versatility with songs and satire. Her interpretations of other well known stage successes was especially meritorious.

Joe Boganny's English knock about comedians supplied the gymnastic part of the program. Benn Linn, with the form of a circus fat-boy, kept the audience in good humor.

Homer B. Mason and Marguerite Keeler appeared in a very clever and one-act farce, "Married." The plot, based on the theme of lost memory, was well done.

Other acts on the bill include Mario Lo, presenting imitations of China creations by living tableaux; General Pisano in a skillful exhibition of sharpshooting and William Horlick and the Sarampa Sisters in a dancing symphony.

LOEW'S ORPHEUM—There is a wealth of genuine entertainment in the bill presented at Loew's Orpheum Theatre, which found generous appreciation by large audiences. The program offers vaudeville and photoplays, the latter being topped by the first screenings in Boston of dainty and piquant Gladys Walton in her newest photoplay, "Playing With Fire." This production is admirably staged, and the story one that penetrates the heartstrings of every human being. Charlie Chaplin also appeared in "A Dog's Life." The vaudeville is one of all-star variety, and includes Cody and King; and Four Brown Girls.

MODERN AND BEACON—A melodramatic underworld story and a merry youthful tale of lively adventure, are the characteristics of the two photoplays shown for the first time in this city yesterday at the Modern and Beacon Theatres. "The Night Rose" is a stirring melodrama of the darker side of San Francisco life, with Lon Chaney in the heavy role of a crooked politician, and Leatrice Joy as a girl caught in the web of intrigues. The companion picture was "Little Eva Ascends," in which humor constantly prevails.

GORDON'S OLD SOUTH—A double feature film program was shown to capacity audiences yesterday at Gordon's Old South Theatre. Leading the bill was a screamingly funny comedy, "Never Weaken," presenting Harold Lloyd as the star. The other big attraction was "The Cave Girl," a screen romance of unusual power and appeal.

"EVERYDAY" IS PRESENTED AT ST. JAMES

Characters Skillfully Drawn and Well Acted by Stock Company

By FRED J. McISAAC.

"Everyday," a play in three acts by Rachel Crothers, was performed for the first time in Boston by the stock company at the St. James last evening.

As the title indicates, this piece is a drama of everyday sort of people who have compromised with their consciences and try to make their children do likewise.

The characters are skilfully drawn, the overbearing lawyer, the meek wife who turns at last, like the celebrated worm; the educated daughter, who returns to the small town to find the village young folks snappier than she is, and the poor, but honest hero, who is a little less heroic, if more honest, than the ordinary dramatic leading man.

"Everyday" was not a success in New York, and that is easily understood, because its dramatic moments are unconventional. Why, the hero doesn't even appear in the last act. Nevertheless it is an interesting play, full of trenchant dialogue, shrewd humor, compact philosophy.

The St. James presented a new leading woman in Clara Moores, a girl who has style and distinction, a great deal of charm, but rather limited emotional powers, if one can judge from a first performance.

The play was capitally performed. The work of Florence Roberts as the wife who revolts, Mark Kent as the judge, Viola Roach as the worldly aunt, Aubrey Bosworth, Jane Miller and Walter Gilbert were all commendable.

PARK THEATRE — Melodramatic thrills and scenes that play upon the emotions are plentifully crowded into the action of the new photoplay, "Thunderclap," shown for the first time in Boston at the Park Theatre yesterday. The story deals with the colorful experiences of a girl fresh from a convent who learns to her horror that her stepfather is proprietor of a gambling establishment. He brutally forces her to be hostess of the house in hope of promoting its success.

FRED STONE TO LEAD MARCH AT THEATRE BALL

Fifty Celebrities of Stage and Screen to Attend Affair Thursday Night

Fred Stone, star of "Tip-Top," playing at the Colonial Theatre and regarded as the greatest musical comedy star of the American stage, is to lead the grand march of the theatrical ball to be held at Mechanics Building on next Thursday evening under the auspices of the theatrical stage employes.

Patti Harrold, prima donna of the "Irene" company and daughter of Orville Harrold of operatic fame, will share with Mr. Stone this distinction. In addition to Mr. Stone and Miss Harrold the occasion will be graced by the presence of fifty other stage and screen celebrities who will participate in the grand march, including the Duncan sisters, Flora Zell, William Hodge, O. P. Heggie, Audrey Hart and Jere Delaney.

Another important attendant on this evening will be Miss Rhea Diveley, a California prize beauty, and at present prominently identified with the Somerville players. Miss Diveley was recently adjudged as the most beautiful girl of the Golden State. Enid Markey, another prominent celebrity of the stage and screen, will also be one of the leaders in the march.

The doors of Mechanics Building will be thrown open at 7 and the festivities will begin at 7:30 promptly. An orchestra of fifty musicians will supply the music for the concert in the early part of the evening and for dancing, which concludes at 2 in the morning.

Vaudeville obtained from the leading Boston theatres will be staged between 11-12 o'clock. Madame Paporello, internationally famed ballet teacher, will present a large number of her advanced pupils in a spectacular dancing number.

A huge fountain of perfume placed in the centre of the auditorium will be one of the novel sights. The hall will be prettily decorated and free souvenirs will be given to those in attendance.

Gertrude Hoffman in Ballet Creation at Keith's

Gertrude Hoffman and her American ballet top the bill at B. F. Keith's Theatre this week, with a variety of dances that please all. Whether one be partial to jazz or classical terpsichore, Gertrude Hoffman's company furnishes the best.

There are other acts which also score a positive hit. Al Herman, who titles himself "The Black Laugh," has a line of chatter that is tonic for the weary.

Then there are Douglas Leavitt and Ruth Lockwood, in a sketch of wit and humor. The McConnell Sisters, Harriet and Marie, demonstrate how classical music should be sung, while Emmet Gilfoyle and Elsie Lange rightly call their act a pot pourri of unique specialities.

Yeast Best When Ironized

The reason IRONIZED YEAST brings such splendid results is simply this—IRONIZED YEAST is scientifically correct in every way, containing in highly concentrated form a specially cultured yeast which is grown under the strictest supervision for medicinal purposes—a yeast which is unequalled for its richness in the essential Water Soluble B vitamines. In addition it contains the correct amount of the two other vitamines — Fat Soluble A and Water Soluble C—which are equally important to health, yet which are lacking in the average modern diet.

These three vitamines bring excellent results even if taken alone—but when taken with a proper amount of easily assimilated organic iron, as in IRONIZED YEAST, these results are secured often in just half the usual time!

ABE REYNOLDS IN REVUE AT GAYETY

Brilliant Company of Burlesque Stars Gives Rapid Fire Performance

Abe Reynolds, popular comedian of the burlesque world, was the attraction in Abe Reynolds Revue at the Gayety Theatre yesterday.

Surrounded by a brilliant company of burlesque stars the inimitable comedian rollics and frolics through ten big scenes in two generous acts.

Supporting Abe Reynolds this year are such burlesque favorites as Fred C. Hackett, Ben Holmes, Dolly Morrissey, Flossie Everett, Florence Devore and the Five Royal Hussars.

Scenery and costumes are up to the usual standard of Spiegel lavishness and beauty.

SOMERVILLE PLAYERS—An enthusiastic welcome was accorded Kate Ryan, formerly associated with the Boston Museum and John Craig Stock Companies, by large audiences that yesterday attended the Somerville Theatre and witnessed a remarkable presentation of "The Calling of Dan Mathews," dramatized from Harold Bell Wright's popular novel.

Miss Ryan, who is making her return to the stage for a single week only, appears as Mrs. Denny Mulhall.

tello Declares He Was k and Called Her Insulting Names

"I stabbed him because he was drunk and called me insulting names" today declared Mrs. Nora Costello of South Boston, held on a charge of murder of her husband, Arthur.

Mrs. Costello was arraigned in the outh Boston Court today on a charge murder.

revious to her arraignment, when estioned by Inspector James A. ennessey of the police headquarters, he said:

"My husband did not work yesterday. During the day he went out and bought half a gallon of 'white mule.' Soon he became very drunk and began calling me insulting names. Then I stabbed him.

"He was a good man. We never had any trouble except when he had been drinking."

The stabbing of Costello by his wife marked the second tragedy within 24 hours in Greater Boston due to moonshine whiskey.

In Chelsea, William Doyle of No. 198 Broadway found his young wife dead in her bed, following a protracted drinking of moonshine whiskey.

Boston and Chelsea police are investigating. Doyle said his wife, Alice, had been drinking for several days, but she seemed to be in good health. Her death was so sudden and unexpected that the body has been turned over to the medical examiner. She was thirty-one years old.

The Costellos were eating supper at the home of Mrs. Costello's parents, Mr. and Mrs. James L. Mulloy at No. 208 F street, South Boston, when a heated argument began. Besides the Costellos and Mulloys, there was present Walter Mack, a boarder with the Mulloys.

So suddenly that it was all over before the others present could stir in their seats, Mrs. Costello seized a short carving knife and plunged it into her husband's left breast.

The police were called in and Costello was taken to the City Hospital. Dr. Robert Sutton, house surgeon, pronounced him dead on arrival.

Mrs. Costello was taken to the police station and was in a defiant mood on her arrival there. She became hysterical, however, when she learned her husband was dead. She was formally booked on the charge of murder.

The police say that the fact that ostello, who was a carpenter, was out f work was the cause of the quarrel, that there was also the motive of oney back of the bickering in which the couple were indulging when Mrs. Costello ended it forever with a blow.

The Costellos lived at No. 422 West Second street, South Boston. They ave three children and a grandchild. children are John, twenty years f New York; Gladys, eighteen, Herbert, seventeen.

DR. CHARLES A. McGINLEY, DENTIST, DIES SUDDENLY

Dr. McGinley was born in Boston fifty-two years ago, graduated from English High School, the Boston Dental College and took a post-graduate course at Tufts Dental College. Fresh From Paris

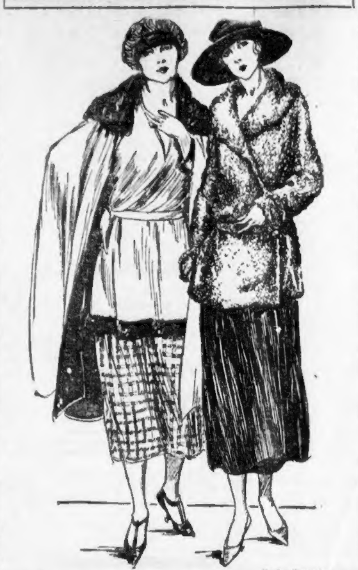
Latest Word From Marie Suzanne



Paris, France.

A FRENCH couturier who is successful in keeping the three-piece costume distinctive in spite of its popularity designs a cape and overblouse of stone gray kasha cloth and then gives them a skirt of the same material in gray and dull green check. The straight circular cape is collared with sealskin and lined in dull green to match the check of the skirt, and the blouse with its V neck and natural waistline is cuffed and banded around the bottom with the sealskin. The skirt is of the circular one-piece variety in spirit with the costume.

ASTRAKHAN, which has done so many decorative things for our Winter clothes, will be carried into Spring on the crest of the sports costume. Informal capes and trotteurs will use it a bit here and there, and the astrakhan coatee will be much in evidence; particularly the loosely fitting, bloused model sketched above that suggests the early Spring out-of-door sporting event.

JACKSON SAYS HE DISAGREES WITH COOK

Clash Between Treasurer and Auditor Becomes Public at State Hearing

State Treasurer James Jackson and State Auditor Alonzo B. Cook had an open clash today.

Jackson appeared before the Joint Ways and Means Committee of the Legislature in opposition to one of Cook's pet pieces of legislation and frankly admitted he has been unable to get along with Cook in the handling of the State's funds.

"This measure provides," said Jackson, "that fees collected by the State shall be paid into the treasury at such times as the State Treasurer and State Auditor shall agree. It is quite evident that these two officials do not agree now. I have received no co-operation from his office. If we can't agree now, how can we expect to agree under this bill?"

Jackson said that in 1920 the State borrowed $3,000,000 in anticipation of revenue, paying interest of $200,000. This past year, under his control of State funds, the State borrowed $1,000,000 and paid interest of only $8,000.

Cook was sought for an explanation of his side of the row with Jackson, but he is in Florida.

Three large or four medium-sized steamers are to be sent to Boston by the United States Shipping Board for the shipment of grain from this port without cost to the city. This information was received today by Mayor-elect James M. Curley in a telegram from United States Senator Lodge. Mr. Curley had appealed to the Senator to assist in securing vessels for the shipment of grain from Boston to Russia.

4 AUTOISTS HELD AS BAD BILLS' PASSERS

Roxbury and Haverhill Men Arrested at Portsmouth, N. H., Garage

Portsmouth, N. H., Jan. 17.—Police of Portsmouth today arrested four Massachusetts men, suspected of being members of the gang which in the last month has passed a large number of raised bills in cities of the Bay State. The men are being held pending the arrival from Boston of Inspector John J. McGrath.

The prisoners gave their names as Jack Maples and John Lombari of Haverhill and Guisseppi Digolo and Zita Falaria of Roxbury.

When arrested twenty-seven $5 bills which had been raised to $20 were found upon the prisoners, according to the police. Maples also was found to be carrying a loaded automatic in a cartridge belt around his waist. He is charged with carrying a concealed weapon.

The arrests were made in a local garage as the men were about to leave the city.

The police had been on their trail since receiving late last night a telephone message from a proprietor of a store at North Hampton, N. H., where a man attempted to pass a raised bill.

The proprietor became suspicious and sent in the number of the automobile used by the men. This was traced to a garage and the men arrested as they came for their machine today.

According to the local police, the band which has been operating in Massachusetts had bilked merchants in a dozen Bay State cities.

Chief of Police Hurley said today that the counterfeit bills are so perfectly done that he "passed" more than a dozen experimentally in the City Hall today without trouble.

Concord House Razed

DON'T CARRY GERMS HOME

JUST out of the crowded, illy ventilated car or subway, in close contact with all sorts and kinds of people. How good the fresh air smells! You have been inhaling infectious germs, and while you may have vitality enough to resist, the home-coming kiss may communicate them to a member of your family.

On leaving the car place one of these convenient-to-take, pleasant tasting yet powerfully antiseptic Formamint Tablets in your mouth. Mixing with the saliva, the antiseptic fluids will bathe the deepest tissues of your mouth and throat, checking germ life. Soothes sore throat, possibly preventing laryngitis, tonsillitis, influenza. Relieves hoarseness. Good also for speakers, singers, smokers, lecturers, etc. Children like them. 60c at all druggists.

50 QUILLERS OUT AT NEW BEDFORD PLANT

New Bedford, Jan. 17.—Between 40 and 50 quillers employed at the Holmes Mill went on strike, but neither union officials nor the mill management would give any cause for the walkout. Although the strikers are members of the quillers and beamers' union, the beamers did not leave their work. Other departments of the plant are running full and, according to Superintendent E. M. Cushman, can continue to do so indefinitely, as they do not depend on the quilling department.

ISSUE APPEAL FOR RED CROSS $100,000 FUND

Make Easier the Burden of War Veterans, Urge Business Men

In an appeal today for public support in behalf of the Boston Metropolitan Chapter of the Red Cross, in its effort to raise $100,000 for work among disabled ex-service men and dependents, a group of business men say in a statement:

"We look with alarm on the crisis which the Boston Metropolitan Chapter of the American Red Cross faces in its lack of funds to carry on its imperative tasks of caring for over 13,000 disabled men or their family dependents, and which no existing governmental or private organization is carrying on.

"We cannot believe that the people of Boston will not respond generously and promptly to the modest request for $100,000 to keep intact the disabled war veterans' work in Boston.

TIME FOR GRATITUDE.

"The citizens of Boston who have happily escaped the conditions which these men will carry with them for the most part throughout their lives can best show their gratitude through a generous and prompt offering—of any amount at all—to preserve this essential work, which the American Legion and other veterans organizations as well as governmental officials, have stated to be indispensable.

"We have the assurance of the Red Cross officials that every dollar collected in this effort to raise $100,000 will be spent directly for the men.

"A plan and scope committee, consisting of eminent and successful business men, are scrutinizing minutely the machinery of administration, to make doubly sure that every dollar expended will bring its full value to the disabled men.

"When these men marched away to war, we promised that we would do everything possible to lighten their burdens; 2,200 lie maimed in the hospitals in and around Boston; thousands of out-patients and others depend almost solely upon the American Red Cross, either to brighten their own lives or to lift a heavy economic burden which rests upon the veterans' earnings or compensation.

WILL HELP IN CRISIS.

"We, therefore, ask the people of Boston to rally to the prompt assistance of the Red Cross in this crisis.

Elite of Boston Extend Welcome to Hamilton Emmons Family

By BETTY ALDEN

BOSTON society is extending a most hearty welcome to the Hamilton Emmonses and their daughter, Miss Marion Emmons. After living abroad for a number of years at "The Copse," Hamble Hants, in England, they have come again to Boston to make their home here.

Already has the very charming and attractive Marion Emmons been asked to aid at various charity affairs of the smart set, and she is to be seen at many of the fashionable dances this season. Only recently, when the Vincent Club held its annual election, she was chosen to membership with several other girls.

Mr. Emmons, whose name is inscribed upon the scroll of the exclusive Somerset Club of Boston, is a graduate of Oxford University, belonging to the class of '97. His wife was formerly Marion I. Van Buren, and the Van Bureau part is now also a part of their daughter's name.

Apropos of Miss Emmons—for she has consented to be one of the Waitresses—a goodly portion of society is interesting itself in the food and flower sale to be held at the Vendome on Friday, January 27, in aid of the Calhoun School.

The affair is to last from 10 a. m. to 5 p. m., and a chafing dish luncheon will be served from 12 to 2, of which Mrs. J. Mott Hallowell is in charge. As usual, a corps of society girls will be enrolled as waitress for the occasion, this time under the headwaitresship of Misses Rose Fessenden and Cornelia Hallowell, and if Rose Fessenden makes as efficient a headwaitress as she made a bell-hop on Woman's Day at the Copley-Plaza, then those who patronize the luncheon at the Vendome may be assured of snappy service. Some of the girls besides Miss Emmons who have promised to serve are the Misses Helen Scott, daughter of Mrs. Hugh D. Scott of Wellesley; Peggy Porter, daughter of the Charles Allen Porters of Beacon street; Mary Hallowell, daughter of the N. Penrose Hallowells of Readville; Louise Weld of Chestnut Hill, Louise Fessenden, sister of Rose Fessenden, also of Chestnut Hill; Marion and Florence Fenno, Eleanor Sutton, Eleanor Winslow and Nell White. Of this group the majority are buds of this season.

Those in charge of the luncheon hope that many out-of-town patrons of the Symphony will stop on their way to the rehearsal on January 27.

But the luncheon is only one feature of the sale, for there will be the most attractive tables laden with all manner of tempting foods and beautiful flowers. Mrs. Arthur G. Morse (Esther Hallowell) will preside over the table at which the most mouth-melting breads and rolls will be sold, while Mrs. Henry T. Hutchins and Mrs. George C. Bradford will beguile the passing patrons with cake and doughnuts. Mrs. Christopher R. Eliot will have charge of the preserves and home-made jellies, Mrs. Reginald Heath of the delicatessen, and Mrs. William C. Matthews of the pastries and tarts. The candy table has been given over to Mrs. Jarrett Blodgett.

Miss Marion Emmons, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hamilton Emmons who has been living in England, is in Boston this Winter. She will be among the waitresses at the luncheon which is to be part of the food and flower sale at the Hotel Vendome on January 27.

MISS MARION EMMONS

Mrs. Robert Winsor of Weston has been put in charge of the flower table, which insures a varied and beautiful display from the private green houses of her many friends.

Tonight comes the much-anticipated skating carnival at the Arena in aid of the Radcliffe endowment fund, following which many of the society elect will attend the dance which Mrs. A. Lithgow Devens is giving at the Chilton Club in honor of her debutante granddaughter, Miss Elizabeth Hamlen, the only daughter of the Paul M. Hamlens of Gloucester street.

All society, almost, has been working in some capacity or other for the success of the carnival this evening, either as members of the committee, as performers, or as patronesses. A few of the latter group include the following: Mesdames Oakes Ames, Frederick Ayer, Hugh Bancroft, John W. Bartol, Walter C. Baylies, Harold J. Coolidge, William T. Councilman, William Endicott, George R. Fearing, Jr., J. L. Grandin, Jr., Jennie M. Hunnewell, Henry P. Kidder, Thornton K. Lothrop, Ronald T. Lyman, Henry Patkamn, Benjamin F. Pitman, Hames H. Proctor, Rodman P. Senelling, George W. Vaillant, Bayard Warren and Fiske Warren.

Betty Alden.

MR. and Mrs. Edwin S. Webster and Miss Frances Webster of Chestnut Hill will sail from Vancouver on February 3 for an extended visit to Japan. Mrs. Webster and Miss Webster were among the society matrons and girls who did such splendid work for the Simmons College endowment fund.

The Misses Elizabeth and Laura Amory will shortly sail with their aunt, Mrs. Amory Lawrence of Commonwealth avenue, for Egypt, where they will spend the remainder of the Winter. The Misses Amory make their home with Mrs. Lawrence, who is well known in the Colony Club of New York, as well as the Chilton and Country Clubs here.

Mrs. Henry P. Kidder, who has leased her Commonwealth avenue home to Mr. and Mrs. Horace Binney, is at No. 267 Clarendon street the home of the late John D. Henley Luce.

Mesdames Edward J. Holmes, Arthur Hunnewell, John L. Gardner, Jr., Malcolm Forbes, Oris Norcross, William A. L. Bazeley, Louis Chauvenet, Charles Loeffleur and Dudley Fay are included in the list of subscribers for the forthcoming series of concerts to be given by the Flonzaley String Quartet.

Charles Sumner Hamlin, well known in Boston, has returned to Washington after a visit with Mrs. Hamlin and Miss Anna Hamlin, who are spending the Winter in Bermuda. Mr. Hamlin is connected with the Federal Reserve Board.

OPPOSE BRAVES FIELD TRANSFER STATION

Auto dealers along Commonwealth avenue and the many thousands of commuters in Brighton, Allston, Newton and Watertown today announced their determination to oppose the plan of the Boston Elevated to establish an enclosed transfer area at Braves Field. They object to that part of the scheme which provides that their cars shall run only into the Braves Field area, where they would be obliged to transfer to another car to get into the heart of the city. Following a brief meeting today with the Department of Public Utilities, the Elevated and the remonstrants asked for a continuance of the petition until February 14 in order that they may work out some arrangement that will be satisfactory to both.

ASK STATE TO PENSION 2 AGED INDIAN SQUAWS

Pensions of $150 a year for a couple of elderly Indian squaws today were recommended to the Ways and Means Committee of the Legislature by Representative Edward C. Hinckley of Barnstable. The ladies are Elizabeth Mills Coombs, seventy-six, and Susanna Attaquin Avant, seventy-five, both of Mashpee. Hinckley said the policy of the State had been to pension superannuated Indians. Mashpee, with but seventy voters, is too poor to do it, he said.

PACIFIC PACT PROTEST IS NON-PARTISAN

Plans for Faneuil Hall Meeting With Borah as Speaker Are Complete

A meeting of protest against the Four-Power Pacific pact will be held in Faneuil Hall on the evening of January 30, according to announcement made by Matthew Cummings.

Plans for the meeting were completed at a meeting of representative citizens of all creeds, races and political faiths held in Westminster Hotel. It was announced that the chief speaker at the meeting would be Senator William E. Borah, who is making a tour of the country attacking the agreement.

Explaining the purposes of the meeting Mr. Cummings said:

"The meeting is to be held under the auspices of no race or political party, but by a number of Boston citizens who consider that the will of the American people, as expressed in the election of President Harding by a plurality of seven million, is being ignored by the American delegates to the conference in Washington.

"This four-power pact, as it has been called, does just what Article X. of the League of Nations agreement would have done had we gone into it. This country is forced to assume burdens no government has a right to impose upon its citizens.

"The American navy is emasculated, nearly a million tons of shipping flying the Stars and Stripes is to be scrapped, thousands of Americans are to be thrown out of work and England is to be left mistress of the seas for another ten years.

"That is bad enough, but there is worse in the pact. We are not allowed to fortify our own possessions in the Pacific. Hawaii, Guan and the Philippines are to be left at the mercy of the Japanese.

"And still worse we are to be made responsible for the safety of the British, French and Japanese possessions in the Pacific, including the mainland of Japan herself.

"With these things in view we Bostonians have felt that it was high time the people of the city were aroused to the danger lurking in this agreement not alone to ourselves and our children but also to the fundamental principles upon which this government is founded.

"That is why we have invited Borah to come and tell us what the proposed treaty means. We want the American people to bring such pressure to bear upon the government that the Senate will refuse to ratify that compact when the time comes."

EXPERT IS HEARD IN CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CASE

Gore Tells of His Clearing Up Publishing Accounts for Lamont Rowlands

Judge Crosby in Supreme Court today heard the testimony of Edward E. Gore of Chicago in connection with the petition of the trustees of the Christian Science Publishing Society that their accounts may be allowed following their resignations.

Mr. Gore is a member of the firm of Barrow, Wade and Guthrie of Chicago, accountants, and had charge of an examination of the accounts of the trustees of the publishing society, and the installation of a new system of accounting.

Gore said his firm was engaged to do the work by Lomant Rowlands, one of the trustees, who for a number of years had at various times employed the firm in interests conducted by him. It was in 1919 when he told Gore that he was not satisfied with the situation presented to him as existing in the accounts of the publishing society and indicating the state of the society and its profits.

Rowlands told him, the witness said, that legal proceedings had produced a situation he did not like, and that it was necessary to have an audit made by an impartial firm. He insisted the men sent to Boston to do the work should be selected because of experience and character.

As a result of the interview with Rowlands, Gore said, seven men were sent to Boston and he accompanied them. Gore then explained that the line pursued was the making of a system that would reflect the true condition each month, and the installation of a new system utilized thereafter in administering the affairs of the trust. Gore said that unquestionably the charges made were fair and reasonable for the service rendered.

Gore was questioned as to the system of Harvey S. Chase & Co., and in answer to Judge Crosby, Gore admitted that, whatever method was adopted, all the income was accounted for in some form.

BAXTER SPENT OVER $10,000 IN ELECTION

It cost Charles S. Baxter about $2.50 a vote to run for Mayor of Boston, according to a statement filed today with City Clerk James Donovan by Oscar G. Westerberg, treasurer of the Baxter Campaign Committee. Baxter's expenses were over $10,000 of which $8,000 was collected from nine persons by the Committee. This left a deficit of some $2,000.

RULES COAKLEY IS CO-CONSPIRATOR IN THE EMERY CASE

COURT SAYS TESTIMONY LINKS HIM WITH DETECTIVE

fore the evidence is competent. The question may be put."

Principal witnesses in the Emery case today were Mrs. Curtis W. Emery and Attorney Robb, before referred to.

Mrs. Emery, the pretty young woman whose marriage to and divorce from Victor D. Papineau and subsequent marriage to Curtis W. Emery created a sensation in the Bay State a few years ago, created a mild sensation today when she took the stand for the Commonwealth.

In the Emery case Attorney-General Allen charges that Pelletier, Daniel J. Gallagher, Daniel H. Coakley, William J. Corcoran and Snow, or Patron, the detective, conspired to extort $50,000 from Mrs. Jennie S. Chase, mother of Mrs. Elizabeth Chase Emery, formerly Mrs. Papineau.

PAPINEAU'S CHARGES.

This threat, Allen alleges, was based on charges of Papineau that his wife lived with Emery before her divorce became absolute, and that the boy, Frederick Papineau, born after her marriage to Emery, is legally his, Papineau's, son.

Mrs. Emery was the first witness of the day. She was examined by Attorney Robert G. Dodge for the State.

Q.—When were you married to Mr. Papineau? A.—March 5, 1905. Q.—When was your first child born? A.—October 22, 1906.

Q.—When did you get your first knowledge that criminal proceedings were being brought against you and Emery in Middlesex County? A.—Emery told me in October, 1915.

Q.—Were you at home when Walsh and Gallagher called on your mother, Mrs. Chase? A.—Yes.

Q.—Were you in the room with them? A.—I was in the next room.

Q.—What was said? A.—There was a conversation between Walsh, Gallagher and my mother, in which Gallagher advised my mother to settle, as it was a bad mess, and many innocent people had gone to jail for slight matters, much slighter than that which they were talking about. I heard my mother say: "Better that we should go to jail innocent than guilty."

Q.—Was any sum of money mentioned? A.—es, but I can't remYember the amount.

Q.—How did the conference end? A.—Emery got up and went into the other room and told them to leave the house.

Q.—Do you recall your mother being summoned before the Middlesex Grand Jury. A.—eYs.

WATCHED OUTSIDE HOTEL.

Q.—On how many days did she attend? A.—Five or six.

Q.—Was she in ill health? A.—Yes.

Q.—Did you remain outside of Young's Hotel on one occasion, in an automobile? A.—Yes.

Q.—How long did you wait? A.—About four hours.

Q.—What time did you leave? A.—After midnight.

Q.—Who did you see come out? A.—Gallagher, Robb and Emery.

Attorney Ralph H. Robb, the next witness, testified that he was connected with Emery in business enterprises and as an office associate from 1912 to 1917 and for a short time in 1919. He said that he was connected with Emery in the Bonded Law Association, the C. D. E. Realty Company and the Emery-Wilkins Company.

Q.—Did you learn of any threatened criminal proceedings? A.—Yes. I was called by Corcoran, the former District Attorney for Middlesex, in October, 1915.

Q.—Anybody else give you notice of these proceedings? A.—Yes. Mr. Gallagher. He called me on the telephone fifteen or twenty minutes before Corcoran called. He said he wanted to see me. He came to the office.

Q.—What did Gallagher say to you? A.—He said that Corcoran, District Attorney of Middlesex, had a serious complaint in his office against Mr. and Mrs. Emery, and that he understood I was counsel for the Emerys. He told me that we ought to talk with Corcoran as soon as we could.

CALLED EMERY A MENACE.

Q.—Tell us what was said in the Gallagher conference? A.—Emery, Gallagher and I had a general talk as to what these criminal proceedings could be. Gallagher said he was well acquainted with Corcoran. He said he had gone to law school with him.

Q.—What next? A.—Next afternoon we saw Corcoran at his office in Barristers Hall.

Q.—What was said? A.—Corcoran did most of the talking. He inquired about various things concerning Mr. and Mrs. Emery in Boston. He told Emery he was a menace to the community and should be sent away.

Q.—Did he describe the offences? A.—No. My memory is that we came away without any clear understanding of what the charges were.

Q.—Did they relate to anything other than his alleged relations with his wife? A.—As I recall them, the charges related to what had happened at the Hotel Brunswick in Boston. Emery was at sea. He was confused about it. He said no such thing had happened.

Q.—What was Corcoran's manner of speech? A.—He was very abusive.

Q.—What did you do after this conference? A.—We went to Gallagher's office. Gallagher semed disturbed as a result of the Corcoran interview. He telephoned to Corcoran in my presence. He told me that Corcoran said that we should satisfy Papineau and Coakley and that the State would then be satisfied.

"SATISFY COAKLEY."

Q.—What happened then? A.—Gallagher went upstairs to see Coakley, whose office was in the same building. He wanted to see if he could satisfy Coakley.

Q.—What next happened? A.—That evening Gallagher, Emery and myself had dinner at Young's Hotel.

Q.—How long did you remain there" A.—Four or five hours.

Q.—What was said at that dinner? A.—Gallagher had a sheet of yellow paper, on which was a claim list of Mrs. Chase's property. As I recall it, the figures were larger than Mrs. Chase's property warranted. I asked Gallagher what the specific offence was. He said it was their living together in Medford before their second marriage in Portland.

Q.—What next? A.—I asked him if that was a serious offence, taking into account that they were married afterward. He said that the later marriage was open to suspicion. He said Papineau hadn't been notified as to the divorce nor the settlement of the alienation of affections matter. He said the releases in the latter suit showed that the charges against Mr. and Mrs. Emery were true. He added that there was enough truth in the general charges against them to hang a hat on, and that the truth could be woven with other things which could be used against them.

MENTIONED FELONY.

Q.—What did Gallagher say as to the claims by Coakley? A.—He said Coakley said there were civil and criminal cases and that the civil case constituted a conspiracy charge. He said Coakley told him that "they" would be satisfied if settlement were made for one-half of Mrs. Chase's estate, but that after they had sent them all to jail they could get the whole of it.

Q.—What did Gallagher say about the claim? A.—He said there was enough evidence against Mrs. Chase to involve her.

Q.—What did you say? A.—I asked Gallagher how they could expect to have cash paid to settle a criminal case. I told him that would be compounding a felony. He said if the civil case was settled the criminal cases would be dropped.

Q.—What did he say as to penalties? A.—He said Emery could get a substantial term.

Q.—How about Mrs. Emery? A.—He said she could be sentenced, too.

Q.—Did Gallagher advise against payment? A.—No.

Q.—What advice did Gallagher give Emery? A.—I don't recollect. He said something about what would happen if he didn't settle.

Q.—Did you hear Emery when he retained Gallagher? A.—I understood he was retained the day Gallagher came to my office to tell us about the threatened criminal prosecution.

Q.—Was Gallagher discharged later? A.—Yes. When Major Walsh came into the case.

Q.—Did you attend the Sunday conference at Mrs. Emery's home? A.—Yes, Major Walsh and Gallagher came and talked with Mrs. Chase. Mr. and Mrs. Emery and I were in an adjoining room.

Q.—What was said? A.—My memory is not clear. The most I can say is it was an indefinite conference and didn't leave any great impression on my mind.

Q.—Were you called before the Grand Juries in Middlesex and Suffolk counties? A.—Yes.

SAW WITNESSES.

Q.—Did you see other witnesses in Middlesex? A.—Yes. Mr. Emery's father, Mr. Emerson, Miss Peckham the nurse at the birth of the Emery child, Mrs. Chase and Papineau in the Grand Jury room when he testified.

Q.—Did you employ the National Detective Agency? A.—I never heard of that name, but we employed LeClair.

Fay King knows the modern girl inside and out. The clever humorist-cartoonist does not spare her sex in her brilliant column in the Boston Daily Advertiser every day

Q.—Did you and Emery communicate with LeClair? A.—Yes. Two or three times a week.

Q.—Did you yourself combine with LeClair and Emery to create any criminal charge against Papineau? A.—No.

Q.—When did you first hear that criminal proceedings were underway in Boston? A.—Assuming that the indictments were brought on February 12, a man came into my office on the first of February and introduced himself as a Mr. Snow. He said he was employed by LeClair, our detective, and that he had been up to Pelletier's office about various matters and something was on foot there.

Q.—Did you at some time receive a summons to the Grand Jury? A.—Yes. I was examined there by Pelletier.

Q.—And were you offered immunity? A.—Yes. But I waived it.

Q.—Did you later advised that there was an indictment against you? A.—Yes. Taft wrote me so.

Q.—When did you learn that the case was nol prossed? A.—I was told some three, four or five months after it occurred.

Cross-examination by Senator Reed:

Q.—All Corcoran said, then, was that a serious complaint had been made Against Emery, with whom you officed, and said that if you were counsel for him you had better come and see him (Corcoran)? A.—Yes.

Q.—You didn't think there was anything unusual in that, did you? A.—I thought it was strange that he did not notify Attorney Converse, who was Emery's counsel.

Q.—You had no difficulty in figuring that it had to do with this marriage, made under circumstances we need not refer to? A.—Yes.

Mrs. Emery Tells of Midnight Meeting at Hotel

Mrs. Curtis W. Emery, former wife of Victor D. Papineau, testifying at the trial of District Attorney Joseph C. Pelletier today, told about a conference she saw at Young's Hotel.

Q.—Did you remain outside of Young's Hotel on one occasion, in an automobile? A.—Yes.

Q.—How long did you wait? A.—About four hours.

Q.—What time did you leave? A.—After midnight.

Q.—Who did you see come out? A.—Gallagher, Robb and Emery.

WANTED TO EXPLAIN.

Q.—Do you remember Emery saying that this would be a terrible thing, that it would open up all the old matters and bring a great deal of distress to his wife? A.—I can't say I do.

Q.—You and he wanted to stop the indictment? A.—Yes.

Q.—You and Emery disclosed to Gallagher that Emery was married within a few months after the decree and that the child was born in seven and one-half months after the decree was made, and that if it was Emery's child, then they must have been intimate long before the conclusion of the six months' period set by the decree? A.—Yes.

Q.—And you discussed with him where Emery and Mrs. Emery had been living during the prohibitive period? A.—I suppose so.

Q.—And Emery insisted he had done nothing wrong, and Gallagher asked such details as any counsel would from any client? A.—I suppose so.

Q.—Can you think of anything which Gallagher did or said which any lawyer would not have done in trying to get at the facts in the case? A.—No.

Q.—He was trying to pursuade Corcoran that here was nothing to the case, wasn't he? A.—Yes.

Q.—Was anything said about money. A.—No.

Q.—Did Emery get insulting and say rough things to Corcoran? A.—No.

Q.—Did Emery so conduct himself that Gallagher said to him after the conference that he was spoiling his chances to get Corcoran to drop the charges? A.—No.

WANTED CASE STOPPED.

Q.—Did Corcoran say anything about breaking up Papineau's home? A.—I don't remember.

Q.—Did Corcoran say that he had a good criminal case in Middlesex County? A.—I don't remember what he said.

Q.—Did Emery say, after a conference with Corcoran, that he wanted to know how the case could be stopped, as he had a wife and baby, and did not want the unpleasant notoriety? A.—Yes. That was why Gallagher called Corcoran as soon as we got back to his office—to do something to stop the case.

Q.—Then Gallagher did go to Corcoran with your knowledge, and with your consent and with Emery's consent. A.—He called Corcoran on the telephone, he did not go to him, and Corcoran told him that he would drop the case if Papineau and Coakley were satisfied.

Q.—Gallagher called Corcoran up to stop the case? A.—That was the effect of it.

Q.—You felt that the situation was full of trouble? A.—Yes.

AGREED WITH HIM.

Q.—Was there anything wrong about what Gallagher had done? A.—No. I felt that the situation surrounding the divorce and marriage was dangerous.

Q.—You thought that was bound to be brought out in Middlesex? A.—I thought it was likely to come up.

Q.—So you and Gallagher had experienced the same opinion? A.—In some regards.

Robb was taken for re-direct examination:

Q.—What led you to believe that the pending indictments were full of danger when you talked with Gallagher at Young's Hotel? A.—I learned from Gallagher that Papineau had been on the voting list in Webster and could have been notified of the second divorce proceedings. But I learned he had not been notified and was surprised when it was granted.

Q.—What did Gallagher say as to the seriousness of the Middlesex county charges, with which you did not agree? A.—Gallagher told Emery he could be sent to jail for a longer term than seemed reasonable to me. I think he said from five to ten years.

The next witness was Andrew LeClair, a detective, employed by Emery while he was in charge of the American National Detective Agency in the Old South Building.

Q.—What were you employed for? A.—To ascertain from Papineau as to the charge that he had not been served notice on the second divorce case and to learn what he was going to do, by cultivating his acquaintance.

Q.—Was there a man named Patron in your employ? A.—Yes.

KNOCKED HIM DOWN.

Q.—How long was Patron in your employ? A.—Until I knocked him down.

Q.—He was discharged as a result of his conduct in the case? A.—Yes.

Q.—When? A.—The morning he testified before the Grand Jury in Suffolk county.

Q.—Up to that time had you learned that he had business relations with Coakley? A.—I had reason to suspect it.

Q.—Will you read this paper through and see if it is a copy of the report you gave to Emery (Producing paper)? A.—Yes, it is.

Q.—After Sunday, October 28, Patron went on reporting to you and did not tell you of his relations with Coakley? A.—Yes.

Q.—You continued to pay Patron up to the time of his discharge? A.—Yes.

Q.—Did you instruct him at any time to fabricate a case against Papineau? A.—No.

Q.—When did you first hear of any criminal proceedings against you in Suffolk? A.—When I appeared on a summons, January 7, 1916.

Q.—Did you have a talk with Pelletier on that occasion? A.—Yes. He said he had a hard time finding me and I asked what I was wanted for. He told me it was regarding Papineau and asked me if I knew him. I said I did. He asked me what I knew about the case. I told him I would not talk without advice of counsel. He said "I'll give you one hour to give your report, or I'll take your license away and put you out of business."

REFUSED TO TESTIFY.

I defied him to do what he had threatened and went over and sat on a bench in the Grand Jury waiting room. A few minutes later a colored boy came out and said the district attorney wanted to see me. I refused to go and Pelletier came out and said to his assistant, "Call this the next case. The sooner the beter." I was then called into the Grand Jury room. Patron was in there. Pelletier asked me if I refused to discuss the case and I said I did.

Q.—You were summoned again? A.—Yes, some weeks later.

Q.—You again refused to testify? A.—Yes.

Q.—Who was in charge of presenting the case to the Grand Jury the second time? A.—Pelletier.

Q.—When did you learn of the nol pros? A.—I never did.

Q.—Did you lose your license, as Pelletier had said? A.—Yes.

Cross-examination by Reed:

Q.—You said they would not renew your detective license because of the indictment? Yes.

Q.—Where did you get the license? A.—Through the police. It was held up by Superintendent Crowley.

LADY SOLICITORS.

Q.—How long have you known Patron? A.—Many years.

Q.—You sent him to Webster to investigate Papineau? A.—No; I went to Webster first to arrange with Dupre, the saloon keeper, to have Papineau meet Patron.

Q.—In this business which you were going to embark Pappineau in there was to be lady solicitors? A.—I don't know.

Q.—Why did you employ solicitors? A.—To give it the appearance of a regular business.

Q.—Why didn't you put Papineau in the office and not bother with solicitors if all you wanted to do was to watch him? A.—We wanted him to earn his pay.

Q.—How much did you pay him? A.—Sixty dollars a week.

REED REPORT.

Senator Reed read from the detective's report to Emery in which were many abreviations which caused the Senator to say, "You fellows are so mysterious I can't understand you. I guess I better get you to interpret this." The Senator then had the witness identify excerpts from the report, showing that Papineau, according to Patron's daily report, had gone with Patron to the Oxford Inn at Webster with two girls. The report stated that they remained there from Sunday until Monday, and that Papineau had summoned the two girls from "the D. K. S. Club." The witness did not know what those initials stood for.

Patron reported that Papineau boasted they did not have to register as he was an intimate friend of the proprietor. The report said that the girls lived in "J" and there was a pencil notation that "J" meant Jericho.

Senator Reed read further extracts from the report in which it was alleged Papineau has been intimate with several women. He then asked LeClair if he would still say it was not his business to get Papineau mixed up with a lot of women. LeClair replied he had no thought of that.

Q.—Were you ever connected with the Morgan Detective Agency? A.—Yes, in 1916.

Q.Did you work for him at the time Morgan was doing work for Cabot? A.—I do not know of any such work.

Q.—Did you work for Morgan in connection with the Pelletier case? A.—According to a Massachusetts statute a severe penalty is imposed on a detective who gives his client's information.

Q.—That law did not affect you this morning, when you testified about the Papineau case? A.—That was my affair.

DENIED BY PAPINEAU.

Chief Justice Rugg here asked the witness whether he came under a summons, and Le Clair replied that he had. The chief justice then asked him what statute he referred to, and the witness replied that it was one passed in 1918. Chief Justice Rugg then requested Senator Reed to suspend further cross-examination on this subject until the court could look up the statute.

Victor D. Papineau was recalled to the stand and replied to questions by Attorney Dodge that the report made by LeClair to Emery was not accurate. He denied that on Sunday, November 28, he had gone to a road house and spent the night, as stated in the report.

John H. Farley, court stenographer, stated that he had looked through stenographic records of the cases reported to the grand jury in January and February, 1916, and had found that the only one presented by Pelletier was a proceeding resulting in the indictment of Robb, Emery and LeClair.

On cross examination he testified that only one or two of every twenty-five cases presented to the grand jury were taken down in shorthand, and he could not remember whether the district attorney or one of his assistants had presented the other cases.

In re-direct testimony he said that most of the cases in January were presented by Assistant District Attorney Webber, as it was a custom for a particular assistant to take the grand jury each month.

Stein-Bloch Suits

—this season's suits, which the makers made to retail for $40 to $75

at $27.50

THE average price we paid was less than half the regular wholesale—the average price you pay is less than half the regular retail.

It is hardly necessary to add that Stein-Bloch clothes are considered the finest examples of tailoring in America; that for 60 years Stein-Bloch has never deviated from the highest standards as to all-wool fabrics, London shrinking, Belgian canvases, the matching of buttons, testing, etc.

But it may be well to add that these suits were made to sell in the regular season, in the regular way, at regular prices, and Stein-Bloch never dreamed we would close them out at $27.50.

These are the things that make this a chance, well, not of a lifetime, perhaps, but a chance to pay so little and get so much that no man can afford to miss it.

N. B.—All the best Stein-Bloch models too,—the Saxon, the Morley for young men, the English, etc., all at $27.50.

JUDGES DEPRIVE DUNDEE OF VICTORY BY GIVING A RANK DECISION

By JACK CONWAY

Johnny Dundee was deprived of victory in his ten-round bout with Charley White at the Faneuil A. C.'s show at Mechanics Building by as rank a decision as was ever given in our fair city. James Fitzpatrick, a State street broker, and Herman Nickerson, a baseball expert, were the judges who voted in favor of White. They must have done some extraordinary reasoning to arrive at their weird verdict.

[illegible] eney, who has [illegible] with the box[illegible] twenty years [illegible] his ballot for Dundee. He de[illegible] the tussle that he was [illegible] Massach[illegible] [illegible] victory judge system continues in effect.

Dundee won eight out of the ten rounds. One session was even, another in favor of White.

Dundee was warned as to the deficiency of our boxing judges and so went out and outpointed White by a margin of three to one. Apparently the judges did not realize that the Scotch Wop was in the ring at all.

The decision caused intense dissatisfaction with virtually every one of the 7,000 persons who witnessed the contest. Even White's most ardent supporters joined in denouncing the verdict.

As Dundee left the ring he was [illegible] Boxing Commissioner Eugene Buckley, at one time a referee himself, joined in applauding the little Scotch Wop. [illegible]kley apparently realized better than most of the fans that Dundee had won.

Maybe the judges voted on the weight of the boxers rather than on what they did in the ring. If so they performed a masterly job. Dundee weighed 128 pounds, White 137.

One of the rules of the Massachusetts Boxing Commission states that there shall not be more than five pounds difference in weight at lightweight contests. When Dundee and White sealed in, it was at first thought that the match would be called off. The Boxing Commission then decided to let the contest go on as a result of the experience and acknowledged ability of the two men.

Dundee justified the confidence the Boxing Commission had in him by stepping forth and giving White a sound thumping.

Johnny Mahoney, president of the Faneuil A. C., made an effort last week to avert just what happened at the show. He requested the Boxing Commission to [illegible] experienced [illegible] Mahoney [illegible] judges [illegible] honest [illegible] sensible gentlemen, are unfitted as judges of boxing contests.

White has his left hook. That's all. He is still the champion one-arm fighter of the world. Against a two-handed puncher like Dundee, he has about as much of a chance of scoring a real victory as some high school kid would have of busting one of Walter Johnson's fast shoots for a home run.

[illegible] had his feet on the [illegible] and was in position, White was [illegible]. But once Dundee started [illegible] around White was about as [illegible] and helpless as a pet [illegible] his hooks and right hand smashes [illegible]rely went whizzing through the [illegible]

The fight was not a sensational affair. White was slow, Dundee careful. White couldn't score very frequently. Dundee landed often, but he never dared an exchange of blows as he does when opposed by a light hitter.

* * *

There was little action in the first [illegible] Dundee kept in close and [illegible] at [illegible] body. The [illegible] Wop kept [illegible] White [illegible] with several left jabs to the head. It was Dundee's round.

* * *

* * *

White looked like a Babe Ruth home run in the third stanza. He opened the session by counting five times with jarring left jabs to the jaw. He then hooked his left to the head. Dundee counted with a couple of light blows to the body, which only caused White to smash a couple of deadly lefts to the head. It was all White.

* * *

Dundee remembered that a man may be down but never out as he resumed warfare in the fourth chapter. He danced around the ring like one of Flo Ziegfeld's best and hooked and jabbed and jolted his opponent. Wonder who the judges gave this chapter to? We voted Dundee.

* * *

The Dundee surge kept going merrily forward round after round. From the fourth frame on it was all Dundee. At times White flashed, sent a left hook whizzing through the air and occasionally scored. The blows, as a rule, landed high on Dundee's head and so did not cause him a great deal of annoyance.

Followed the tragic verdict.

Willie Harmon of Dorchester defeated Mickey Kirst of St. Paul rather easily in the semi-final of eight rounds. Neddo Flynn of Somerville bested Harry Crane of Cambridge in two frames, while Freddy Warren of South Boston won over Tommy Maguire of Providence in eight frames.

* * *

More than 7,000 fans attended the show. Ask any of these ladies and gentlemen what they thought of THE DECISION.

B. A. A. AND B. C. WIN IN HOCKEY TWIN BILL

The first game in the Winsor cup series was a walkaway for the B. A. A. hockey team, who cleaned up Melrose, 10 to 1. The crowd was treated to a real Indian rough-house in the other part of the twin bill, when Tech and Boston College played. When it was all over the score stood three to two in favor of the Eagles.

Soon after the Winsor cup series game started a hot scrimmage began in front of the Melrose goal. Three [illegible] players came up sharply against Goaltend Langley. Three [illegible] defenders rushed in to block [illegible] and in the tussle that followed the [illegible] was [illegible] the goalie was [illegible] was on the Melrose [illegible] as the rubber glanced off to one side.

The wearers of the Unicorn put up a fast straight hockey game and won by a great margin. Ingalls, Hutchinson [illegible] and Percy put in a whale of a game for the B. A. A., while Alec Wright was the most aggressive defender on the whole team.

The B. C.-Tech game started off with a tough scrimmage. Dalton for Tech shot the puck down in front of the B. C. goal, causing a mad rush from all sides. When the smoke of the battle cleared Tech had scored a goal. The shot was credited to Hayden, the Engineers' right wing. No more tallies were made by either team in the remainder of the first session.

B. C. played a slower game than Tech. Its work was no better than Tech's but it [illegible] University Heights men managed to keep the rubber in Tech territory a large part of the period. Captain Hughes played a fine forward game. The second session saw the B. C. men show real work. Their team work was no better than Techs but it was much faster and when the third period opened up they were clearly the superior of the Engineers, who were tired out from the dangerous stick work which had gone on in that session.

The second session opened with [illegible] team work. Penalties came so fast that at one time Tech was playing with only five men and B. C. with four. Neil MacNeil of Tech out and Morrissey and Hughes of B. C. off. B. C. should have scored in the opening of the period when Garrity got possession of the rubber. He came up to the cage at an angle and shot straight for the goal.

The second Tech tally was made by Hayden and at cost of an injury to Flint Taylor.

Then came two B. C. tallies in quick succession. [illegible] got a pass from Hughes and made a pretty shot after drawing Nickle out. In the next few seconds a mad scramble developed and Curry was credited with a tally.

Curry landed the final tally for B. C. after following up a rebound. Nickle was hurt on the head with a stick and was obliged to leave the game. Tech missed a score in the last few seconds and missed a fine opportunity when Devernet passed to Hayden in front of the B. C. cage.

NO RECORD FOR HOME-RUN KING THIS YEAR

By JACK VEIOCK

New York, Jan. 17.—Babe Ruth will break no home-run record this year, that is not if the suspension against him stands, and it is believed that it will.

This is the opinion of baseball men in general and although officials of the New York Yankees today declined to discuss the probable effect a month's suspension will have on Ruth's hitting it is a practical cinch they feel the same way about it.

The case of the home-run king has been revived by the circulation of a rumor that the major leagues will throw out the rule against barnstorming at their schedule meetings in February.

This rumor is vigorously denied in some quarters, for, it is pointed out, Judge Landis' decision must be strictly upheld with no show of attempts at evasion and that the reinstatement of Ruth now would be looked upon as a purely commercial move.

"We have heard nothing regarding the case of Ruth or Meusel since Judge Landis handed down this decision," said Business Manager Ed Barrow of the Yankees today, "and all I know is that the ruling does not apply to the Spring exhibition season. Aside from this, I do not care to discuss the case."

Providing Ruth's suspension stands and he gets started on his 1922 campaign for home runs within five days of May 20, when he will again be eligible to enter the Yankee lineup, he will start just twelve home runs behind his record of last season.

Ruth got his first homer last season on April 16 and his twelfth on May 17 at Cleveland. He did not get his thirteenth until May 2[illegible] so the task cut out for the [illegible] if he is kept out of the lineup, will be just about as big as a house.

CINCINNATI HAS A 'PROMISING YOUNGSTER'

The Western League records indicate that George Harper, the "promising youngster" signed by Cincinnati, is one of the classiest prospects in the game. According to Miller Huggins and other wise birds, however, this Harper was a "youngster" when the Polo Grounds formed part of the Great American Desert.

In other words he is the same Harper who came up long ago, played with Detroit awhile, then went to St. Paul, and drifted back into the smaller leagues.

But, adds Huggins, he was only a kid when he had his try at Detroit, he has learned the game since then and he is one of the best natural hitters anyone could wish to see.

Better by far a seasoned player, say twenty-eight years of age, who has gained full knowledge of the game, than a green kid affected by stage fright and the shivers.

Hock, the Virginia Leaguer who will compete with Harper for the extra outfield role or for Roush's place if the big star fails to appear, hit 301 in Virginia and is well recommended.

RUPPERT ON WAY TO VISIT BABE RUTH

Chicago, Jan. 17.—Colonel Jacob Ruppert, president of the New York Yankees, who was in Chicago today, said that he came here on private business and with no baseball affairs in mind.

It was believed that Colonel Ruppert might have come to see Judge Landis about Babe Ruth's suspension.

Before starting back to New York, Colonel Ruppert said that he would talk with Ban Johnson and also see Ruth, who is playing a vaudeville engagement.

LEXINGTON ORGANIZES BASKETBALL SECONDS

Lexington High will be represented this winter with a snappy second basketball team, in addition to the regular five. Wallace Ferguson, right forward, has been made captain. The second team will open its season on Friday noon, playing with Belmont High second, between the periods of the contest, between the regular outfits of these two schools.

REPORT STARS FOR PLAYING BASEBALL

Chicago, Jan. 17.—Allegations that Johnny Rawlings and "Irish" Meusel of the Giants are playing week-end baseball in California have been brought to the attention of Commissioner Landis, it became known today.

Cueto Given Berth

San Francisco, Jan. 17.—Manuel Cueto, Cuban baseball player, will play third base for the Seattle Club of the Pacific Coast Baseball League this year. Cueto was purchased by the Indians last season but refused to report.

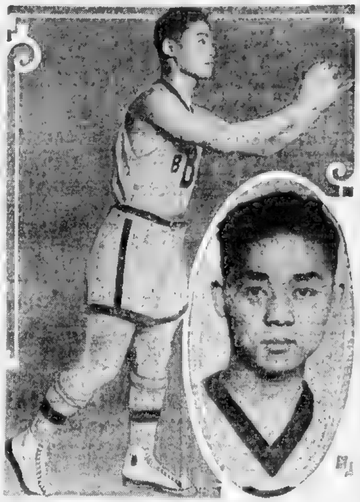
CHINESE BOY STUDENT IS BASKETBALL STAR



TING H. CHIU.

Lad From Flowery Kingdom High Point Scorer With Team

Athletes from the Flowery Kingdom are few and far between but right in our midst playing for one of the Y. M. C. A. leading basketball teams, is Ting H. Chiu, of Amoy, China, who devotes much of his time between the Museum of Fine Arts and his basketball work at the "Y."

Chiu is a likable chap who is quick to answer and talk about basketball and sports in general. He has played a forward on the Y. M. C. A. 1920 cubs team. The team has played three games to date, winning all. Chiu scored more than half of the points made by the team.

Ting speaks English fluently. He was graduated from A. C. College, Tien Tsin, where he captained the championship basketball team in "19" and "20." This team toured all the larger cities of Northern China, being successful in every contest.

Soccer is a leading sport among the Chinese students, according to Chiu, who asserts that some fine players are developed from among the college players of his country.

When this native of China reported in answer to the call for candidates, many thought that he was a newcomer at the net game, but once on the floor, togged out in a gym suit, he dispelled that idea and surprised the candidates with his accurate shooting at goals from difficult angles.

He was made a regular on the Cubs and according to Coach Foster is a hard worker, quick to learn the inside knowledge of the game.

Chiu plans to finish his art work in Paris in 1923. When he returns to his native land he hopes to carry with him the fine points of basketball along with inside knowledge of our national game. He intends to take up baseball in the Spring.

Give Incompetent Judges the Gate

The "verdict" in the White-Dundee battle again shows the urgent need of a new system in the judging of bouts in this State.

Twice within a few days questionable decisions have been handed down.

It is time to protect the clubs, fans and fighters from incompetent officials.

The Boxing Commission seems to have overlooked several "good bets" in their recent housecleaning when it was declared that only the very best men would be retained for judges and referees.

There are a number of "officials" still on duty who are entirely unfitted to pass judgment on conflicts and who have repeatedly demonstrated their gross incompetency.

These false decisions have hurt the sport.

They destroy the confidence of the fans. They send them away from contests grumbling and dissatisfied.

Decisions by men who know the game and who are sufficiently interested in fair play not only to the contestants but to the public are sorely needed and will go a long way to encourage and cleanse boxing—than which there is no more popular indoor pastime.

This was proven in the armies overseas, where boxing did so much for the morale of the boys that it gave the ring sport a new lease of life in peace time.

Now some of these "bonehead" judges are doing their utmost to destroy the prestige that resulted from army endorsement.

The boxing game was popular in the army because it was free from graft and petty jealousies, and the judges in our present contests should try and emulate the example of the boys who were real sports.

Give the incompetent ones the gate.

Why not keep these so-called experts out of the game and put back the boys who really know boxing, but were forced out because they could not get "work."

GOLF AS STUDY IN COAST UNIVERSITY

Berkeley, Calif., Jan. 17.—Golf is to be taught at the University of California here, in answer to demands of students. The Harmon gymnasium authorities have announced that for the first time in the school's history a course will be offered.

"Tibs" Price, an assistant football coach, will be the instructor and the course will be known as "Recreation 16." A putting green and driving facilities have been installed in the attic of the gymnasium.

OHIO STATE GRID STAR GOES TO SANITARIUM

Chicago, Jan. 17.—Charles (Chick) Harley, former Ohio State University football star, who recently returned to that institution from his home here for advanced studies, has been taken to a Michigan sanitarium with a nervous breakdown.

His illness is attributed to an injury sustained in a football game here last Fall while playing with the Staleys, a professional team, when two ribs were broken.

RATH OPENS A MUSIC STORE IN PHILLY

Former Second Baseman of Reds and White Sox Has Given Up the Game

Morris Rath, who second based for the pennant winning Reds in 1919, has quit baseball and opened a music store in Philadelphia.

Rath's career was more or less a disappointment. In his boyhood days at Central High School he was a sensation.

In 1909 Connie Mack gave him a tryout, but he was too unseasoned to stick, and slipped to the bushes. He came up again in 1912 with the White Sox, hit for .272, and looked like a winner.

Then he made his big mistake. Comiskey's idea of an adequate salary and Morry's opinion on the same subject did not jibe. So Rath did not train, loafed at the training camp, and had altogether a miserable season.

He was stamped as a failure and spent the next five years of his life in minor leagues. Then Garry Herrmann rescued him and gave him his third chance to make good.

Rath is still a pretty fair ball player, and the Phillies, at least, could use him. But Morry is well satisfied with selling phonographs and sheet music, and probably wouldn't want to go back to baseball.

Rath may consider his retirement if San Francisco will make a deal sending him to a different climate. He could not stand the damp and cold of San Francisco the past [illegible] and wound up in bad shape, physically. There are seven different kinds of climate to be endured on the Coast circuit, says Rath, and at least five of the seven varieties disagree with him. Possibly he might accept a berth in a league like the Southern, where there are only two kinds—one hot and the other hotter.

SANDS-DOODY TO REFEREE ICE BATTLE

Don Sands and Ernie Doody have been selected to referee the Pere Marquette-Westminster hockey game at the Arena tomorrow night. This will be an important game in the United States League competition.

For almost a week Charlie Van Norman of the Westminster Club and Frank Synnott of the Caseys argued over the selection of officials for this game. It was not until late yesterday that they came to an agreement.

Sands and Doody worked in the previous early season Pere Marquette-Westminster conflict. It will be recalled the Canadian American Club won over the Kingstons by a one point margin but only after several extra time sessions were [illegible] and the Caseys were well [illegible] from the strenuous extra periods.

Pere Marquette's supporters and the players themselves believe the team has finally hit its true stride and that it will take an exceptionally brilliant outfit to outscore it. The victories registered over St. Nick's and the Quaker City's have worked wonders in the spirit of the players.

Carson Cooper, reputed one of the most brilliant amateur players in Canada and who last season was with the Hamilton Tigers, will not be allowed to play with Westminster.

Cooper's name was not filed with the league authorities when the rest of the Westminster eligibles' names were submitted and therefore he is not eligible.

B. U. RIFLEMEN WIN FROM DE PAUW TEAM

The Boston University rifle team scored another victory when it beat the De Pauw rifle team, 486 to 477. This score was identical with the score which Boston University made over Gettysburg last week.

The individual scores of the Boston University team in the match with De Pauw were as follows, Anselmo, 100; O'Neil, 99; Wadsworth, 96; Pelletier, 96, and M. S. Thompson, 95. Each team shot on its own range and the scores were compared by telegraph.

LONDOS VISITS COACH JEDLINSKI AT HARVARD

Kelly Turned Back

San Francisco, Jan. 17.—Ren Kelly, San Francisco pitcher, who has been with the Giants, has been turned over to the Seattle club of the Pacific Coast League. Kelly is a brother of first baseman George Kelly of the Giants.

Ring Results

JOSEPHS AND TRAVERS ALL SIGNED UP FOR BATTLE AT LYNN

After a lay-off of over six months, Bobby Josephs, claimant of the New England Featherweight title will resume boxing with Mickey Travers of New Haven at the Casino A. C., Lynn, next Monday evening. Josephs has been training for over six weeks and is in the best of condition. His eye, which was injured in his last bout with Al Shubert, is completely healed.

Mike Carr, manager of Josephs, has been criticized for matching Josephs with Travers in his first bout for so long a time. Carr, however, claims the New England title for Josephs and is willing to defend it against any and all comers.

Chick Suggs has been offered all sorts of inducements to meet the fighting Syrian, but has turned them all down. His first alibi was that he would fight in Fall River, but after promoters made Suggs an offer, he flatly refused to enter the ring. When Josephs was champion previously he fought every welterweight feather in New England but since Suggs was [illegible] to win the title on a technicality he refuses to fight outside of Fall River and then he names his own opponent.

Josephs intends to have a busy year, and immediately after defending the title against Travers, he will go to meet Young Wagner of Philadelphia at the Olympia A. A., Philadelphia.

Virtually the entire Syrian colony of the South End will travel to Lynn in a body to root for their idol.

Great interest is being manifested in the boxing show to be held in the B. A. A. Gymnasium tomorrow night. The classes to be contested are 112, 118, 126, 135 and 158 pounds.

The new classes of competition are proving very popular both with the spectators and contestants and some very promising talent has been developed.

The 112 pound class has among its entries some of the greatest amateur boxers in New England at this weight—Henry Ford of the North End and Mike O'Dowd of the South End [illegible] Then there is Harry Brown of Peabody who has shown signs of great promise, this being his first year in competition, Albert Myers of the South End and David Higgins of Chelsea.

In order to develop boxers in the heavier classes for the New England and National Championships, the management has again put on a class at 158 pounds and hopes to get a large list in this division.

Eddie Mead writes:

"In his fight to challenge Jack Dempsey for the heavyweight title, Captain Bob Roper wiped out one of the three decisions that were held against him last week at Providence when he defeated Dan Dowd.

"Pat McCarthy of Boston holds a decision over him and he is very anxious to come to your city and defeat John L. Sullivan's town boy, and is willing in order to get McCarthy into the ring with him, to donate a part of his share of the gate receipts to any American Legion that the Boxing Commission will name.

"Eddie Mead, who is now handling the captain, says that he has tried in all manners to get Bill Brennen into the ring, but to no avail, and now says that Leopold Parnell Flynn is afraid to have his big Irishman fight Roper.

"Roper defeated Bob Martin with ease in your city and the best that Brennen could do with Martin was to get a questionable decision over him. Brennen was defeated (so the fans declare) when he boxed Dan Dowd recently.

"Why not either a McCarthy or a Brennen match before the club offering the best terms."

"The following boys are training at Hayes' and Kelley's gym:

Landis Permits Bob Meusel and Piercey to Play

By Universal Service.

Los Angeles, Jan. 17.—Johnny Rawlings and "Irish" Meusel of the Giants, and Bill Piercey and Bob Meusel of the Yanks, were given permission to play Winter baseball here, by Judge Landis, baseball commissioner, said "Irish" Meusel.

The statement was made on receipt of information that Judge Landis is investigating the all-star team organized by "Irish" Meusel with himself, Bob Meusel, Rawlings and Piercey in the lineup.

Although he understood the rule banning barnstorming by World Series players was ineffective after January 1, Meusel took no chance and telegraphed for permission to play. He declares he has a message from Judge Landis giving consent.

COACH HOWE SELECTS CREW AIDS SOON

Dr. Heber Howe, newly appointed general supervisor of the Harvard crew, is making ready to appoint his staff of assistants for the coming season. Just what he will do with Bill Haines, the English professional, is a matter of conjecture, but the big fellow may be used to coach the individual oarsmen on the stroke the Crimson intends to use.

Harvard may try to evolve a stroke of its own. The Athletic Association has movies of most of the Harvard 1921 races and these will be followed closely by the staff. Suggestions of the coaches will be considered and Howe will be called on to decide just what will be the final methods used.

"Pete" Higginson, acting chairman of the advisory rowing committee, and Coach Howe are old cronies. Howe was coxswain for three crews that won over Yale when he was in college and one of them was in the year Higginson was varsity captain.

In addition, Howe has the distinction of being a "Who's Who" man for his work in botany, which is something of a novelty in Harvard sports.

The Crimson, the college daily, played a big part in the campaign to have a change in rowing. In its editorial about the new situation it says:

Whatever one may think of the relative importance of athletics and studies there is one thing on which all Harvard men are agreed. Whenever a Crimson team gets into the habit of losing contests, particularly those with Yale, it is time to do something about it.

Whether it is a logical attitude or not, we are all quite certain that we want our teams to be consistently victorious, and if it were a question of reducing our participation in intercollegiate athletics, we would not dream of such action unless we were at the time pre-eminent in the world of sport. This much by way of generality.

The news of Dr. Howe's appointment as permanent supervisor of rowing is welcome for two reasons. In the first place, it allows us to view the coming season with confidence and, second, it is in accord with a sound athletic policy.

Last year's crew season was enough to make reorganization imperative; there could be no argument as to the necessity. It was only a question of need—a question above all of finding the right man to fill a position which requires technical knowledge coupled with no little executive ability and the qualities of leadership.

In choosing Dr. Howe the Athletic Committee has at the outset won the support of every Harvard man who is in touch with the rowing situation.

Aside from the reasons for gratification to be found in the selection of the supervisor, the Crimson finds much cause for rejoicing in the attitude which has been taken in the appointing.

Dr. Howe will be a permanent supervisor, we are informed, and his position will not depend on the outcome of any particular race or season. This is an eminently wholesome arrangement. The idea of appointing a man to coach a team and then firing him when he fails to win victories may be efficient, but it reeks of professionalism.

There is a distinction between engaging a professional coach to turn out winning teams and engaging a graduate to direct sport; it is a distinction which has been recognized by the athletic committee.

The fact that not only is rowing an all-year sport, but that so many men engage in it with little possibility of winning a letter makes it especially important that this distinction be borne in mind. Otherwise there will always be a danger of developing the university crews at the expense of rowing in general.

Besides the permanent advantage of the reorganized crew system, it also offers prospects of immediate improvement. With a wealth of material, with the direction at last definitely placed in the hands of one man, and that man Dr. Howe, we can look forward confidentially to the difficult season before us.

OUT OF TOWN FANS NOT BOOSTING RED SOX

Out of town fans continue to show as much interest in the fate of the Red Sox as the native Bostonians, and the boys who used to make the weekly vacation trips to Fenway Park aren't in a very happy [illegible] of mind, judging by their letters

How Can Red Sox Be Saved for Boston?

Boston fans have their own ideas about the Red Sox. Some think Owner Frazee has completely wrecked the team. Others believe there is still hope of rebuilding a ball club from the ruins.

The American League situation is a big thing in sports here just now. A consensus of fan opinion would do more to iron out the troubles than anything else. Harsh, but restricted criticism hasn't helped much. A real show-down of sentiment might.

BROOKLINE WINNER OVER NEWTON BY ONE GOAL

By FRED C. LANE

Brookline High won over Newton by one goal at the Arena in the hardest fought hockey contest yet played. Both teams were well matched in the game which decided [illegible] will take its place with the leaders of the hockey league. So determined, however, was Newton to even the score [illegible] players could be seen in the thick of the fray.

The second and third periods proved to be the best sessions of the contest. Brookline had a 1-0 lead when Murray slipped the puck from out of a scrimmage and scored on a fine shot from a difficult angle. This scoring caused the Newton players to disregard their defence game and all tried to get another goal.

Team work was the watchword for the first period. Both teams lived [illegible] instructions of their coaches, [illegible] was soon forgotten.

Whittemore, playing goal for Brookline, saved the day on a number of occasions for Coach Carroll. Brookline was satisfied to let the score [illegible] from the Garden City sextet.

Newton fought hard to win the day, but all was in vain. The checking of the Brookline players had the Newton [illegible] the closing minutes of the game it was hard to tell how many players each team had on the ice. Subs were sent in by both coaches in rapid succession.

More players were ruled off the ice than was the case in any game to date. Both sides were the offenders in illegal tactics. At one time Brookline was represented by [illegible] men. At this point Newton made a strong bid to even the score, but they in turn made misplays which the referee [illegible]

LONDOS BATTLES GARDINI IN MAT TITLE BOUT

Jimmy Londos, idol of the Greeks, and Renato Gardini, the Italian champion, will wrestle to a finish tonight in Mechanics Building in what may well be classed a contest for the world's light heavyweight championship.

They will battle best two falls out of three under American Association rules, pin falls only to count and all holds except the strangle to be permitted. Captain Joe Kiloury will officiate in this event.

Both men finished their work yesterday and both declare that they are in a satisfactory condition. Each says he will weigh about 190 pounds, and as they are both of the aggressive type the fans are looking for a fine contest.

With the intense feeling between them and the fact that it is their first finish match, each is dead anxious to win, so that it will be a case of "shoot" from beginning to end.

There will be but one preliminary. In this John Kilonis, just back from the Pacific Coast, takes on Charley Metro to a one-fall finish without time limit. In this Arthur Mather will referee.

Promoter Tuohey will send the first pair to the mat at 8.15 sharp and the fans who are anxious to miss none of the thrills of the Kilonis-Metro battle should be in their seats early.

To accommodate the demand for advance reservations the box office in Mechanics Building, as well as Tuohey's down town office, will be kept open all day.

TONIGHT'S MAT PROGRAM

Londos vs. Gardini, to a positive finish, best two out of three, American championship rules. Captain Joe Kiloury, A. E. F., referee.

Fanny Hurst's Dramatic Story ❧ "BACK PAY" ❧ The Story of a Girl's Soul Redeemed Through Love

A Serial of a Country Girl Who Seeks Happiness in the Maelstrom of the Metropolis

Read This Story Here Day by Day, Then Watch for It in Motion Pictures in Theatres

The same old faces every night, the same old parlor tricks and parlor games palled on Hester, who longed to go to the city.—From "Back Pay," by Fannie Hurst. The story of Hester Bevins, a girl with a "pink crepe de chene soul," who said, when cautioned that "the wages of sin is death": "If sin has any wages, I have a lot of back pay coming to me." She goes to New York to get her back pay for the life she thinks she has missed while living in the village school. Read how she collects.

SYNOPSIS

"BACK PAY" is the story of [illegible] with a crepe de chine soul and Jerry Newcombe, who loved Hester [illegible] every [illegible].

Hester lives in a small town where the people with whom she is compelled to associate at Mrs. Simmons' boarding house [illegible] her with their [illegible] Jerry Newcombe, who [illegible] Friday's [illegible]. Jerry has [illegible] in love with Hester [illegible] narrow dull life of the [illegible] was so boring that she cannot bring herself to promise to marry him and settle down for life and become like her table companions at the boarding house.

Hester's nerves are tried to the breaking point, and she finally decides that she must give up this deadening life which she has endured for eight years and try to get along in New York city. She parts with Jerry and [illegible].

("Back Pay") has been created into an unusual photoplay by Cosmopolitan Productions; direction of Frank Borzage; scenario by Frances Marion; it will be released as a Paramount picture.)

H[illegible] head. Not so much that as because I want to win you—I'm making $150 a month now, Hester."

"That isn't much these days," said the unsympathetic Hester.

"Maybe not in New York, but here it is—why, many a man has a nice little home on that—and I've been saving up. You know who, too, Hester?" He came to stand beside here.

"[illegible] a dear, good boy, Jerry, but you mustn't think—well—I don't like to say it."

"Hester, I've always wanted to marry you. I've always loved you ever since we went to school together. I've never even thought of another girl. You know that, don't you?"

Hester nodded. "I'm sorry, Jerry—"

"Say you're glad—I'm glad—and you'll see it in time, just as I do."

"Oh, no!" She was vehement now. "Those calicoes and ginghams—I hate them, I loathe them, I hate the talk of those people! I can't abide the people themselves—they make me sick! The town makes me sick—it's slow and dull and stupid, and I've got to get away. I've been thinking that for some time, and this afternoon I decided. I'm going to New York, Jerry and have a try at things there. I've got a crepe de chine soul, Jerry. It's only fair to you to tell the [illegible]"

Out of breath she raised her eyes to his. Nothing there of [illegible] of anger

"I'm awful sorry, Hester, but you'll see it some time. And I'll wait for you; I'll never think of any one else, and when you get ready you come back to me, and I'll be waiting for you."

"Oh, Jerry, Jerry!" the cry broke from her, and he drew her to him and kissed her.

The momentary gust of feeling gone her thoughts reverted to her new determination. "I'm going to make good there," she said, and her eyes were shining. "That's the place for anybody with ambition, and I'm going, Jerry, I'm going next week, just as soon as I can get away."

There was something of pity in her heart at the hurt look in Jerry's eyes. Impulsively she laid a hand on his arm. "I wish it could be different, Jerry, dear. There's no one else, only it's this longing to get away to the big things in life."

Jerry's Promise

Jerry nodded. "I understand, but I'll be waiting for you. I'm going to stay right here to say welcome home if you find it isn't all so fine as you think it'll be."

Red lights were streaking the western sky; Jerry laid a tender hand on the girl's arm; "I wish you'd sing for me," he said, wistfully, "that song I like so much."

Hester's soft voice added to the glory of the parting day as she sang

In the gloaming, oh, my darling
When the lights are dim and low
And the quiet shadows falling
Softly come and softly go

"Oh, Hester," he broke in, "if you only knew how I love you"——

Unheeding, she went on:

When the winds are sobbing faintly
With a gentle unknown woe,
Will you think of me and love me
As you did once long ago?

"That all, Jerry, some day I'll finish it for you."

He took her arm to help her off the trunk, and they wandered toward the amphitheatre as the dusk was beginning to call a halt to the games.

They lingered in the gathering darkness while the merrymakers packed up their baskets and the parents gathered up their little ones. In couples the older girls and boys wandered past in the twilight; if ever it was a time for soft words sweetly spoken it was then.

In Jerry's heart the world around him sang a refrain the like of which he felt in his own being, but Hester only stared through the twilight, down the track toward the station, where there was a whistle, the grinding of brakes, the clang of a bell.

"It's the seven-ten for New York," said Hester.

I put it this way, so in case Phoebe didn't wish to speak to me even now, she could get out of it by some reference to the extravagance of talking so long at the rate of a cent a second. With all the side lights I am getting on the feminine of the Harrison temperament, I couldn't be sure that even in the joyous first moment of finding herself Neal's wife [illegible] world [illegible] be [illegible] Of course [illegible] to be sorry for [illegible] she may go on resenting the fact that I forgave Evvy "before the fact," as it were.

"It's adorable, you sweet little baby, you," I replied.

"[illegible] sweet [illegible] the wonderfulest husband in the world. [illegible] new sister—though I seem to have lost my old sister. Good by, sister. Good by, you darling."

There was a break in Phoebe's voice. And to match it there came an ache in my heart. I thought of my own honeymoon—of my Jim, in some strange faraway place. "Anyone can prepare a simple mixture at home that will darken gray hair, and make it soft and glossy. FOR SCHOOL CHILDREN

—By Brice Belden, M. D.

CHILDREN [illegible] should never be allowed to go to school without having had an adequate breakfast. Too many are sent to school without any breakfast at all. Unless children are properly fed they cannot study well, and, besides, they will not be able to resist infectious disease.

The eyes and ears need special care. If the eyes are crossed, or red and inflamed, and if there is any [illegible] should be attended to at once. Running ears should not be neglected, as they will not heal of themselves without deafness, as a rule.

Defective breathing is vitally important, and a search must be made for obstruction.

The head should be washed with hot water and soap once a week, preferably before bedtime. The hair must be thoroughly combed and dried before retiring.

A bath should be taken twice weekly at bedtime. The water should be warm, but followed by a cold water sponge. A healthy skin depends upon cleanliness, unless it is kept clean it cannot perform its vitally important functions.

The hand should always be washed before eating, since unclean hands infect the entire body with disease germs carried in this way to the mouth.

A child's clothing should be of [illegible] warm. In the Winter time the garments should be of wool and cotton mixed.

EYES THAT SAW NOT

A LITTLE STORY OF A GIRL'S LOVE

By Ruth Larkin

THE father of Daniel Wickoff [illegible] thought of accepting.

Miss Irene Grey looked on and smiled approvingly. She had been serving Mr. Wickoff in the capacity of secretary for three months and she, too, had come to the conclusion that it was time Daniel stood on his own feet.

"I'm off!" shouted Daniel gaily. "It's the laboring life for mine. Can anybody recommend [illegible] occupation?"

Prepared for Bed

At 10 o'clock Irene prepared for bed. She read until 11 and then opened her door and peered into the hall. The night light was burning below stairs.

She listened. Certainly that was a sound from the library. Her body became tense. She seized a dressing gown and crept down the stairs. Just outside the door she saw the dim figure of a man working the combination of the safe. Her heart began to beat faster. It was unmistakably Daniel.

After what seemed hours, she crept into the library and opened the safe. The money was gone and so were the jewels that Miss Wickoff had worn to a reception [illegible] before.

"The house was burglarized last night," he said dryly.

Irene shuddered.

"Why, Mr. Wickoff [illegible] have [illegible] police [illegible]

I reckon they thought I was just coming in for the night and hadn't noticed them. They sauntered away. I was watching from the library window. Then I hid the stuff and lay in wait for them. Got them, too. And did not wake a soul in the house."

Fit of Weeping

Irene Grey burst into a sudden fit of weeping. Mr. Wickoff cleared his throat and wrung Daniel's hand. Then he looked from his son to his secretary. "Hadn't you better thank Miss Grey for believing in you, Daniel? I didn't, you know, [illegible] the police of my loss."

Alone with his father's secretary [illegible] Miss Grey—Irene—there's only one reason why a girl would do what you did. I never saw any encouragement before, but you must like me. I've tried to hope, but you were always so—so distant. You say you pitied me—thought I had a raw deal, but that doesn't excuse a thief. Was it because"——

"They say pity is akin"——

Daniel threw his arms about her. "Won't you go on feeling sorry for me forever, dear?"

HATS OF MANY SHAPES

—By Rita Stuyvesant

EVERY woman [illegible] smart hats and just now [illegible] little sport hats, smart tailored hats and stunning hats for evening wear are offered in gay profusion.

Chic hats of Angora or camel's hair to complete the sports scarfs are usually trimmed with worsted flowers. Then there are the little up-turned felt hats all bedecked with a curled pheasant feather or sharp quill. Tams of duvetyn or [illegible] are [illegible] with a quill across the front or thrust off the side.

For afternoons, the hats of all black cire, that shiny new material that reminds one of stove polish, are well liked, and this fabric is made up into all sorts of small and becoming shapes. Black lacquered cherries or small berries are the usual trimming.

Duvetyn never seems to wane in popularity for smart millinery; a hat of pearl gray with a soft crown has a flat bow of narrow French blue ribbon edged in silver as the only trimming, and this is placed on the under side of the brim.

Panne velvet with feather trimming is smart for dressy wear, and many attractive hats this Winter are fashioned with a mushroom brim and soft crown, and have ostrich feathers dropping off the sides. It is only for the tall woman these hats are becoming.

FIFTY-FIFTY UNIONS

NEW UNDERSTANDING OF WEDDED LIFE

By Beatrice Fairfax

MY friend The Philosoper dropped in at the office a few days ago. And he expressed a few ideas that ought to have wide circulation. Here they are much as a wise and tolerant man expressed them.

Said he:

"Men are getting pretty broader cases. But two of our recent tragedies have a lesson in them that would interest you. Did you notice that in a certain Western case and in another New York city one there's never a doubt that the wife of one man murdered another who had once loved her without the law and who had tired of her? And in both cases the husband has stood by.

"Men are getting pretty broad-minded nowadays. They are beginning to stand ready to give a woman another chance even when she's thrown away her first chance. They are growing in their own souls so that they can accept what was once the unforgiveable in the woman they love.

"It doesn't strike me that men are becoming one bit less moral or decent because they understand the law of Christ and stand by a sinner—even one who hasn't yet repented. But it does strike me that men are growing when they can show toleration and kindness and loyalty to the woman they swore to love until death, even though the woman's conduct is what would once have seemed to cut her off more completely from human friendliness than death itself.

"I guess the men-folks are getting a real idea of what marriage has to be. It's fifty-fifty now for husband and wife. It used to be seventy-five-twenty-five — with the woman getting the short end of it every time. There wasn't much happiness that way. There never is much happiness in a marriage when the man of the house insists on being the head of the family.

"Ever think about things this way? Over in England they have a king. He stands for the head of the nation. Folks are loyal to him. Their toast is 'God Save the King.' Here we set Uncle Sam up as our king. It would go hard with any one who spoke ill of Uncle Sam. But he's nothing except an ideal—our symbol of patriotism.

"Well that Uncle Sam ideal is the thing that's got to come into marriage. With two fifty-fifty equals making a family as a [illegible] of them [illegible] the ideas they [illegible] respect [illegible] their 'Uncle Sam.' No head of a real family—but an ideal which both reverence. Husband isn't boss. Wife doesn't rule. But they both recognize the ideal toward which they're striving in their partnership. And that stands as the symbol of their union—their Uncle Sam."

Not a [illegible] of [illegible] are they? I wonder if the men [illegible] who read will tell me their [illegible] on the subject of their own growing respect and understanding of marriage. I wonder if the women who see this will give me their reflections on the fifty-fifty union that must come if we're going to be contented with the marriage state.

One Reason Why HILL'S CASCARA BROMIDE QUININE Acts On The Spot

1. Drop a C. B. Q. Tablet in a glass of clear water.
2. Instantly the tablet begins disintegrating or "breaking up."
3. In 10 seconds the medical properties are thoroughly mixed with water.

Thus, Hill's C. B. Q. Tablets act immediately, give relief without delay and begin checking Colds and La Grippe long before ordinary tablets, by actual test, are absorbed by the stomach juices. To prove this, subject other than C. B. Q. Tablets to the test, [illegible]

A SWEET LITTLE BABY BOY

Makes a Bright Spot in Every Home. A Comfort in Years to Come

Park Rapids, Minnesota.—"I have taken your medicine—Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound when I was a girl for pains and before and after my marriage. I now have a sweet little baby boy and will send you his picture if you wish to publish it. My sisters also take your medicine and find it a great help, and I recommend it to those who suffer before their babies are born."—Mrs. WM. JOHNSON, Box 155, Park Rapids, Minn.

To marry and arrive at middle age without children is a great disappointment to many women. Think of the joy and comfort other women have in their children as they grow older.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has helped to bring great happiness to many families by restoring women to health. Often the childless home is due to a run down condition of the wife, which may be helped by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It brought health and happiness into the home of Mrs. Johnson. Why not to yours?

Stocks Close Strong in New York; Money 4½%; Trading Active on Advance

FINANCE AND BUSINESS

By B. C. FORBES

Somebody ought to go to jail. Such action might stop Stock Exchange failures of the recent type, namely, the Chandler disgraceful collapse and the ugly E. W. Wagner & Company bankruptcy.

* * *

No guilty party responsible for the Chandler fleecing of the public has yet gone to prison. If current reports have foundation, there were Wagner practices warranting drastic action by the authorities.

In neither case have the New York Stock Exchange Governors taken any action calculated to convince the public that everything possible is being done to bring the wrongdoers to justice. The members of the Stock Exchange are themselves safeguarded from loss through failures, because the bankrupt members' Stock Exchange seat can be sold for $80,000 to $100,000 and the money applied to squaring members' own accounts.

The unpleasant, the ominous impression Stock Exchange failures and the action—or, rather, inaction—of the Stock Exchange authorities are making upon the minds of the public is well revealed in the following letter received yesterday from a writer in a small town in Wisconsin:

"I have been a booster for you, and I looked forward with expectation to your saying something in regard to the failure of E. W. Wagner & Company.

"I was carrying $10,000 worth of bonds with them that cost me $5,800. I had them half paid for, and now, from what I hear, I stand a chance of getting back only about fifty cents on the dollar.

"What makes me so mad is that there has hardly been a word said in the press about this failure, and, believe me, if it had been some bucket-shop, it would have been advertised in good shape and no doubt the members of the firm would have been arrested. It seems high time that the New York Stock Exchange made some plan to protect people from a loss when doing business with a firm that is a member of their exchange. If they made an ironclad ruling like this, it would probably stop stock exchange firms from speculating with money and stocks entrusted to their care.

"I am beginning to think—and there are others, too, of the same mind—that it would be far better to trade with some of the members of other exchanges. I would be glad to have you see what influence you can use to make it safe for a person buying bonds or stocks from Stock Exchange members. Of course, I am only a small investor, but I am the one that is hardest hit when anything like this happens."

Whenever I travel I get all sorts and conditions of people to talk about Wall Street, High Finance, the Stock Exchange, Big Business, and suchlike interests. I have discovered that a great many people harbor the sentiment expressed in this sentence, quoted above:

"It seems high time that the New York Stock Exchange made some plan to protect people from loss when doing business with a firm that is a member of their exchange."

Now, the favorite reply of the incompetent, the indifferent, the lazy, is "It can't be done." But can't-be-doners always come to grief sooner or later. The can-be-doners win out in the end.

Unhappily, the Stock Exchange was run far too long by can't-be-doners. Happily, it has now been taken in hand by can-be-doners. Here are a thought and a suggestion for them:

In the days when relatively few people had direct dealings with Wall Street, it was not so vitally important for the Stock Exchange to take action to safeguard the customers of its members. Today, however, thanks largely to the nation-wide distribution of war bonds, a tremendous number of persons have taken to buying both stocks and bonds. Whereas the large or professional operator used to be the principal figure in Wall Street; the principal figure today is the investor of small or moderate means.

Is everything being done that could be done to protect him from such catastrophies as the Chandler and the Wagner disgraceful episodes?

I think not.

The Federal government periodically examines National banks and State governments regularly examine State banks, trust companies and others doing financial business with the public. Since the Stock Exchange is an unincorporated body the Legislative authorities leave it pretty much alone.

But why should not the Stock Exchange governors regularly, systematically and rigidly examine the affairs of every one of their members who solicits or handles dealings with the public?

"It can" be done.

If it is not done, it will be because of opposition from members of the Stock Exchange. Well, let those obstructive members be warned that if they block such a safety measure and other reform measures designed to reduce the losses unfairly suffered by the public, then they can depend upon it that the power to block reforms will be taken out of their hands by enraged voters.

I, for one, am not cock sure that incorporation of the Stock Exchange would be in the best interests of the public. But unless the Exchange governors demonstrate convincingly that they are capable of effective action, then I would vote for incorporation.

HIGHEST PRICES LATE IN THE SESSION

By W. H. ROSS
Financial Editor.

Stocks closed strong in New York, highest prices being reached in the last hour. Trading was active on the advance. Transactions approximated 700,000 shares. Shorts were driven to cover in the afternoon.

Pullman and Haskell and Barker were two strong issues late in the day. Gains ranged from fractions to more than four points. Rails were comparatively inactive, but joined in the upward movement.

The market improved in the second hour and kept up over Monday and all the afternoon. Studebaker was the most conspicuous stock and by the last hour was up more than four points. It is rumored that two pools have been operating in it and that they are now discussing amalgamation. Talk of an extra dividend is also heard. It is expected to establish a high record for earnings in the current quarter. Gulf States Steel was up almost four points at its highest. Much of its strength is attributed to prospective earnings. National Lead sold at its highest in two years, advancing more than four. Illinois Central reached a high for three years. Louisville & Nashville made the biggest gain among rails, rising four points. Crucible showed a fractional gain in the last hour, while Mexican Petroleum was then up more than a point. May Department Stores, General Electric and Pierce Arrow preferred advanced from two to more than three points; National Enameling and Sumatra were weak issues, receding more than two. Call money opened at 4½ per cent. Foreign exchange was irregular.

IRREGULAR AT OPENING.

While the market had an irregular start, gains exceeded losses and the tone was rather good, despite call loan renewals at a higher rate. Price changes averaged small. Issues of express companies advanced the most and were much more active than usual. Adams and Wells Fargo sold at their highest in more than a year. So did American Ice and Computing Tabulating. Studebaker was an early feature and gained almost two points. Chandler was the only other active motor and moved up a fraction. Oils showed class strength, but Mexican Petroleum was an exception, being down from a fraction to more than a point. Rails were quiet and ruled slightly higher at the start and later. Steels and equipments were heavy. Tobaccos, tires, coppers and the list in general fluctuated little up to midmorning. Crucible, Pierce Arrow and Mexican Petroleum were the weakest issues and the first named sagged the most. A number of specialties made material gains, including Industrial Alcohol, Virginia Carolina Chemical and National Suit.

WHY MONEY ADVANCED.

The rise of the call rate to 6 per cent. yesterday was variously explained. It was said that the low quotation for several days caused withdrawal from New York of funds from the interior. Another opinion is that payment of U. S. Treasury notes due January 15 was a factor. If so, it was a small one, as were preparations for withdrawal of $14,000,000 by the government from banks in the New York district today. The calling of loans yesterday morning was probably the most potent influence in elevating the money rate. The idea that money had become superabundant was dissipated quickly. Bankers did not propagate it.

DANGER SIGNAL SENT OUT BY WANAMAKER

Spillane Tells How Philadelphia Merchant Gave Warning of Inflation

By RICHARD SPILLANE.

Philadelphia, Jan. 17.—W. T. Munro acted as spokesman for the delegation of Scottish tweed manufacturers visiting this country, who, with various men of local prominence, were the guests of Gerald Campbell, British consul, at the Union League here.

He is a pretty good teller of stories. One of the stories he told was of being at a ranch in Australia, seventy-five miles from the nearest village, two years ago. About the only touch with the outside world was by telephone. His host got reports each day by phone of important happenings in the world.

One morning after being called to the phone the rancher said to him, "My man tells me the cables say John Wanamaker has cut prices 20 per cent. Who is he and what does it mean?"

WARNING THE WORLD.

"It means," Mr. Munro replied, "that I get back to civilization as quickly as posible."

"Do you know," Mr. Munro added in telling the story, "that from that day liquidation started? do you know that it was John Wanamaker of Philadelphia who gave to the world the danger signal? He raised the flag warning the world that inflation had gone beyond all limits and deflation was coming."

Mr. Munro explained the purpose of the Scottish tweed manufacturers was to protect their trade mark from violation. It had been violated. The Scotch tweed manufacturer made their goods of virgin wool and the goods were made in Scotland. They had no big mills.

The industry was in the hands of individual families that went back some hundreds of years, all proud of the high name of Scotch woolens, and who never tinkered with quality.

They had spent $375,000 abroad advertising their products and they were here to study the American field and, if they found the market warranted it, they intended to spend a good deal of money advertising in America.

BEARDS AND YOUTH.

William M. Coates, when complimented on how young he was looking, smilingly declared he had discovered the secret of being young and looking young.

"Fifteen years ago," he said, "I wore a beard. It was white. My folks used to tell me how old I looked. I felt old. Maybe it was a suggestion that came through being told I was old and because, when I looked in the glass, I realized I was old.

"Well, one day I had that white beard cut, and since then I have shaved regularly each day.

"Now, you tell me I look young. I thank you. I feel young. I feel younger than I did when I wore that white beard. If there's a moral in what I tell you make the most of it."

WALL ST. GOSSIP

By MONITOR

NEW YORK, Jan. 17.—It would require two chapters to give accurate description of Monday's market, which developed a marked increase in activity. In the forenoon impressive strength was displayed by the rails, motors, oils and specialties. The rise in call money from 3½ per cent. before the close, caused a reaction which materially reduced the early gains. As a result a buoyant market was converted into one of considerable irregularity, and profit taking exercised a preponderant influence over buying. Meantime, an active buying movement had made its appearance in the investment securities, although much of the demand appeared to be of a speculative character.

IN the forenoon upturn the prominent features of strength were Atchison, Southern Pacific, Northern Pacific and Norfolk & Western among the rails, while Studebaker and Chandler led the motors. There was considerable activity and strength among the motor accessory stocks. A sharp covering movement developed in Mexican Petroleum, causing an advance of more than three points in that issue. The steels were only moderately active, with the exception of Gulf States, which had a very sensational rise on reports of a struggle for control. There is a story to the effect that Henry Ford will require Gulf States Steel to round out his Muscle Shoals proposition.

THE hardening of money rates may be accepted as entirely logical in view of the unwillingness of out-of-town bankers to let funds remain on call at 3½ per cent. for any extended period.

CALL money, which had opened and renewed at 3¼ per cent. yesterday morning advanced to 6 per cent. in the afternoon. Loans were called on a larger scale than in recent weeks. Purchasers of stocks during the last week had attractive profits which they sought to convert into cash on the advance in the money rate, with the result that prices were reactionary generally in the late afternoon. While a 6 per cent. rate is not expected to be maintained, the attitude of out-of-town banks in withdrawing funds indicates to bankers that money will not be kept here at a rate below 4 per cent.

STRENGTH and activity in the high grade investment rails was the outstanding feature in the early trading. For the first time in two years Atchison sold at par. There was a thin market in the stock, no sales being recorded between 99 and 100, but on the reaction in the afternoon there was an excellent demand for the stock at 98⅝ and just below. Some hopeful souls suggested that the advance in Atchison indicated the possibility of an increase in the dividend rate to 7 per cent. this year. Manifestly with the conference now in progress on the labor situation, no such action is contemplated.

A LARGE floor trader was the principal buyer of Southern Pacific, giving as the reason that Atchison is not worth 20 points more than Southern Pacific. He failed to obtain any substantial following, and sold his stock in the afternoon. The stock was taken by firms which sometimes act for banking interests identified with the property.

WITH the ending of the New York Automobile Show Saturday, motor manufacturers have a well-defined picture of this year's motor car market. It is significant that the Studebaker Corporation will not change its plans for producing 24,000 cars during the first quarter. Following the New York show, exhibits will be held in most of the larger cities of the country during the next two months. This is expected to stimulate the public appetite for motor stocks.

STUDEBAKER made a new high for the movement above 86 and reacted a point under profit-taking sales. The financial position of the corporation is understood to be stronger than ever before. It is said that it entered 1922 with $9,000,000 in cash and no bank loans, as compared with $4,000,000 in cash and bank loans of $8,500,000 a year ago. There is understood to be a large short interest in the stock, which was increased rather than decreased during the day's transactions.

GULF STATES STEEL showed an advance of nearly three points and the opening in the morning, the first sale at 54 comparing with 51¼ at the close Saturday. Circulars have been sent to stockholders by a firm of attorneys asking them to name a price for the sale of their holdings. It is understood that the attorneys represent a syndicate in which some residents of Birmingham are interested. It is pointed out that there are only $2,000,000 of 7 per cent. preferred stock ahead of the $11,000,000 of common stock, and that during November and December a surplus was shown, although operations were at only approximately 60 per cent. of capacity.

BOOST IN RAILS CAUSES SMILE IN WEST

By C. B. EVANS.

Chicago, Jan. 17.—The stock market Monday opened with a smile which was longer on one side of the face than on the other—the railroad side—creating a grotesque distortion.

But on the average the American now does not mind a distortion or anything else if only it shall mean something doing. Something was doing, and curiously it was as to its major part in the transportation line, and the spirit of the street was that we can ride around on higher prices and have lots of fun even though we do not carry much traffic.

We had a lift in most of the railroad stocks, and par for Atchison was so much of a stranger that it was given a hearty welcome. And up a full 15 points from the recent low. Also Illinois Central and Pullman did well, which further stimulated Chicago blood.

"YELLOWS" IN DEMAND.

But in another transportation line there was extraordinary life. Yellow Cab Manufacturing stock touched 200 after a recent rapid advance and selling last year as low as 74 March 4. These Yellows have had a remarkable history, the name of the other one being Yellow Cab Company, doing the local transportation business.

The secret appears to be in exceptionally able management. These cabs are spreading themselves all over the United States and the company making them is one of the very few in the automobile line that are making any money. One reason for the local success of this transportation is found in the fact that the company has transmuted "cabby" into a business man and also something in many cases decidedly resembling a gentleman.

Chandler and Studebaker, in which there is a large interest in Chicago, also had a good turn, though in the mass the stocks of the auto companies are in much disfavor. This in spite of every evidence that the demand for these vehicles is to be greater than ever after the people have had time to get their breath and pay up some of the back instalments on cars already owned.

The lift in the railroad stocks looked really like a humorous performance in view of the lamentations over the present financial condition of the roads, but the rise was unquestionably a result of increased confidence and genuine buying.

THINGS LOOKING BETTER.

"There is something back of this," was in the minds of many observers, meaning that something good is coming that is not commonly known. It is not necessary to restort to such an explanation. The rates for money have declined and you members of the old guard of investors and speculators buying "the kind you have always bought," to quote from the medicine man's advertisement.

And then the government has treated the railroads better than most of us have expected or realized, and if it were not so everlasting slow in getting anywhere with a changed freight rate or a decision of any other subject we would be justified in some confidence as to its part in the administration of these properties.

COPPERS UP IN THE BOSTON MARKET

Tone Is Good All the Morning on Local Exchange; Mixed Curb Trend

The Boston market had a good tone at the opening and maintained it during the morning. Coppers were higher, but not especially active. Island Creek was a leader, advancing two points. Mohawk, which has resumed dividends, went up ¾. Other large gains were Quincy, 2½; Ahmeek, 2; John T. Connor, 1¾, and Amoskeag, ex-dividend, 1. Among issues to recede a point or more were Edison and Agricultural Chemical preferred. American Telephone gained a fraction. Gray & Davis and National Leather were prominent in the market, but failed to hold small gains. Trading was confined to a few issues.

The market was strong in the afternoon. John T. Connor sold at a record high and Copper Range and Allouez at their highest in more than a year. Gains from one to three points were made by Copper Range, American Sugar preferred, Calumet and Hecla, Allouez, United Drug first preferred, General Electric, Waldorf and John T. Connor. International Products and Loew's Theatres were down a point or more.

The Curb market was quite active, but had an irregular trend. Colorado Extension sold at its highest in more than a year, but had to advance a fraction only to do it. Leaders were Boston & Montana, Eureka, Mutual and Hecla Divide.

More than One Billion Dollars
– in dividends

This vast sum has been distributed by companies whose securities are actively traded on the New York Curb Exchange.

- –British-American Tobacco Co., Ltd., over 90 millions
- –Standard Oil of New York, over 76 millions
- –Standard Oil of Indiana, over 73 millions
- –Nipissing Mines Company, nearly 26 millions
- –Midwest Refining Co., over 17 millions
- –Swift Internacional, over 12 millions
- –Continental Motors Corp., over 3 millions
- –and 41 others which have paid in dividends from one to 38 millions each.

Substantial worth, good management, and established business are demonstrated by the dividend records of these and other companies which have paid less than one million in dividends.

Without interest in furthering any individual issues, Jones & Baker are "information headquarters" for stocks traded on the New York Curb Exchange.

Part of their service is the INVESTOR & TRADER, a 12-page weekly review of the market, giving quotations, price range, charts, and late market news on specific stocks.

As evidence that this brokerage service is appreciated, nearly 40% of new customers are introduced by old customers.

SEND IN BOOK TEST REPLIES BY SUNDAY

Final Picture, No. 60, in Great Trial of Skill to Be Printed Tomorrow

Participants in the Boston American's $5,000 Book Title Picture Test again are cautioned that their sets of pictures must be in the mail not later than the hour of midnight next Sunday night.

The final picture, No. 60, will be printed tomorrow.

1.—Write your name and address plainly in the upper left hand corner of the outer wrapper.

2.—Use sufficient postage. Containing both written and printed matter the parcel will be rated as "first-class" mail. It will call for postage at letter rates. Parcels arriving with "Postage Due" stamps may, under the rules, be ruled out.

Address your set of answers as follows:

BOOK TEST EDITOR,
BOSTON AMERICAN,
NO. 80 SUMMER STREET,
BOSTON (8) MASS.
P. O. BOX, 239.

CAN USE COPIES.

Participants in the Test who, at the close, find themselves shy a picture or two, are advised to copy these pictures in the set belonging to some friend or acquaintance. Your newsdealer will put you in touch with somebody in your neighborhood who is in the Test. Use tracing paper and pencil. Copies made in this way will be quite as acceptable, and "count" for just as much, as pictures clipped from the paper.

The Book Test Awards will be paid without question to those who earn them. That is to say, to those who send in the largest numbers of Correct Titles. It would, of course, be highly pleasing to everybody in this office—and to the great body of contestants—if it happened that the principal awards should go to persons in urgent need of funds; to somebody who has suffered through the depression in business; to some home where the main worry at present is how to meet the doctor's bill. All that the checkers and counters can take into consideration, however, is the excellence of the List of Titles you submit.

This subject is referred to again on reading the letter of a contestant who sends along bills showing that he owes $778.06, and who says: "Please don't spurn me, but HELP"!

PURPOSE OF TEST.

The gentleman's bills have been returned to him. His letter is most distressful. If the Test Editor were a man of great wealth a check for the amount mentioned would be on the way tonight.

The purpose of these Tests is, first, to give the readers of the Boston American entertainment of an unusual character. Picture tests are "good fun." That they have some educational value will not be denied. On the side, there are 219 awards, with a total value of $5,000. Only five or six of these awards are "worth writing home about," but the fun is here for everybody.

On Monday of next week the Boston American will begin the printing of Book Test Drawings with the Correct Titles. The drawings will be reduced in size, so that two may be printed daily while the checkers are at work at Test Headquarters. When the work there is further advanced as many as four pictures may be reproduced on a single day. This will give every participant in the Test an opportunity to check his own score.

The staff at headquarters is out to make a new time record on the present Test and the List of Winners will be printed at the earliest date possible. How long the work will take will depend, of course, upon the number of parcels received between tomorrow and next Sunday at midnight.

Rules of Contest

The Boston American Book Title Test is a test of skill and judgment open to all readers of the Boston American, irrespective of age, living in any city or town in New England or Canada.

Two hundred and nineteen cash awards will be given by this newspaper to its readers who submit the largest percentage of correct titles to the sixty pictures to be published one each day for sixty days consecutively (Sundays excepted) in the Boston American.

The test will consist of sixty pictures, each representing the title of a well-known book, to be printed, one each day, in the Boston American, the first picture on Monday, November 7, 1921.

Participation in any other contest which has been run, which is now running or which may be run by the Boston American will not debar anyone from entering this test.

Every participant or any or all members of a family will be allowed to submit one set of pictures, but each set must contain only ONE TITLE to each picture, and no participant shall be entitled to more than one award and not more than one award shall be given in any one family.

Each and every title must be written or printed on the coupon furnished by the Boston American; or on a page of some book form of itself, accompanied by the picture furnished by the Boston American, or a pen or pencil copy thereof, and must have the name, residence, etc., of the participant on each title blank.

Do not send your titles in "list" form, that is, do not write titles under one another on a piece of paper.

In case there are no complete sets of correct titles, awards will be given to the person sub[illegible] basis of neatness, judgment and exact accuracy, but if the tie cannot be decided in that way the tied participants will receive similar awards.

Under no circumstances should participants send in their titles before the end of the Test, as any sent in before the last picture is printed will not be considered. KEEP your titles from day to day and at the end of the Test arrange them in numerical order and then send them in all together at one time.

Time will not be a factor in making the awards. The first titles sent in after the Test closes will stand no better than the last submitted.

All titles must be delivered to the Boston American title headquarters, at No. 80 Summer street, Boston 8, Mass., either by mail or in person within the specified time limit which will be announced later.

All envelopes or packages containing titles must be legibly addressed as follows: "Book Title Test Editor, No. 80 Summer street, Boston 8, Mass., P. O. Box 239," and each envelope or package must bear the name and address of the sender legibly written or stamped on the upper left-hand corner.

As all the pictures of the Test will contain written or printed matter, if mailed it is absolutely necessary that the packages be fully prepaid at postal rates, as mail of this character goes to the postoffice as first-class matter. The Boston American reserves the right to refuse to consider any sets of titles on which charges for postal delivery are not fully prepaid.

There will be no title or answer book to buy. List of Book Titles will be printed in the Boston American. The list appearing will contain among others the correct title.

Participants who desire further information should address their inquiries to the Book Title Editor, No. 80 Summer street, Boston 8, Mass. Questions will be answered as far as possible through the columns of the Boston American. If participants desire personal replies they should enclose stamped and self-addressed envelopes.

In case of a tie awards will be made on the American. If participants desire personal replies they should enclose stamped and self-addressed envelopes.

The Boston American reserves the right to make any change in, or addition to these conditions that it may deem necessary for fairly and properly conducting the Test, and the decision of the Boston American Book Title Editor on any question which may arise will be absolutely final, and the entry of a participant is a complete acceptance of all conditions and regulations now made or to be made.

EXTRA SYMPHONY DRAWS BIG CROWD

Complete capacity was the condition of Symphony Hall last night when the second of the extra series of Symphony concerts was given. Mr. Monteux had chosen a very charming program, which was delightfully performed. It included Beethoven's fifth symphony, Svardins' "Carnival in Paris, Debussy's "L'Apres Midi d'un Faun," and the Tannhauser Overture. The soloist was Estelle Liebling, who sang an air from Marriage of Figaro and from "Etienne Marcel."

OPEN AGRICULTURAL ANNUAL MEETINGS

The fourth annual union meeting of the Massachusetts Agricultural Organizations opened today in Horticultural Hall. The sessions will continue today, tomorrow, Thursday and Friday. The program includes lectures, moving pictures, demonstrations and exhibits. Announcement of the Corn Show Awards will be made tomorrow, and the Union Agricultural banquet will be held tomorrow night. The hall will be open until 10 o'clock tonight and from nine in the morning until ten at night, Thursday. Tomorrow and Friday it will be open from nine until six.

GERMANY TO SEND DELEGATES TO GENOA

Berlin, Jan. 17.—The Italian Ambassador, according to news dispatches, has invited the German government to appoint a delegation to the economic conference at Genoa, on March 8. The note, which had caused a flash of optimism, reached the Cabinet just as the outlook at Cannes, France, was being discussed.

The Ladies of Zonta

Learned and Lovely. NO Woman Should Work

Ladies of the Zonta Club met in Detroit. Did you ever hear of them? It would do your heart good to see them. Zonta is an Indian word meaning "trustworthy." No better name could be selected for the typical American business woman. She is indeed TRUSTWORTHY, as every business man can testify. If women disappeared from business, from the left elbows of male business persons, many a man would have to watch his cash, that now safely trusts it all to a woman.

The ladies of Zonta, whose organization has now spread to eighteen cities, will have a great convention in Detroit on May 26th and May 27th next. They met at the Statler Hotel, and are a sort of female Rotary Club, electing only one lady from each business or profession. The luncheon of Zonta was different from the average Rotary luncheon. The food and the faces were lighter. Pickles, of course, and ice cream, of course. Instead of the usual Rotary slab of roast beef, there was a delicate vol-au-vent about as substantial as a charlotte russe with the crust missing.

It was interesting to hear the Zonta young ladies—all LOOKED YOUNG and most of them WERE young—answering the question, "What woman would you have rather been, in all history, if you had your choice?"

One earnest young lady said, "Cleopatra, of course," and a thoughtless young man with blond hair immediately interjected, "Then I would like to have been the asp." Can you imagine a more foolish remark? He should have said, "Marc Antony." Better still, Caesar, who met Cleopatra when she was younger, before her little boy Caesarion was born.

A lady with a diamond dagger in her hair said she would like to have been Lucretia Borgia, which means presumably that she would enjoy poisoning gentlemen. But she was a visitor from the moving picture belt of California, and didn't really mean it. It was just a film idea.

The healthiest looking lady and one of the most beautiful wanted to be Mrs. Mary Baker Eddy. "She healed me," said she.

Another wanted to be Joan of Arc, another Queen Elizabeth, not a bad choice, for she had a gay life what with Walter Raleigh, and one thing or another. One wanted to be Grace Darling, another the Queen of Sheba, because she traveled. Some of the ladies said they had a distinct choice, but did not care to mention it. Nobody suggested the mother of the Gracchi, yet she had the job that every woman ought to want. Men inevitably are first-class in everything except in creating men, and woman should concentrate on the ONLY profession in which she rules. It's the greatest profession.

The idea of the Zonta Club is most excellent and will surely spread to all cities of the country. It is to bring business and professional women together, first, that they may discuss matters that interest them; second, that by hearing about the occupations of other women they may not become too one-sided or concentrated on their own work.

The Detroit Zonta Club is thoroughly representative of the best women's organizations in the country.

It would surprise our Puritan grandmothers if they could come back, see the intelligent, alert young women of the club and learn how many businesses and professions are represented by the officers of the club and members. One office manager, one estate manager, one lawyer, one doctor, one life insurance manager, one jeweler, one stenographer, are included among the officers.

Seventy-two make up the membership, fifty different professions and business are represented. The women meet every week to discuss matters that interest them, occasionally but not always wasting their time listening while man talks at them.

Besides interesting themselves in their own business, they concentrate attention on young girls starting out in business for themselves, supervise, protect and advise them.

It is a disgrace to civilization that any woman should find it necessary to waste her years in business. Men ought to do that and earn enough for two.

Men should do the best they can considering what they are. And woman's attention should be devoted exclusively to developing a better race.

However, our so-called civilization makes it necessary for millions of women to work. That being the case, such organizations as the well-named Zonta "trustworthy" Club are useful and should be encouraged. One should exist in every city.

Mr. Borah on Submarines

But Senator, Just Suppose

Copyright, 1921, Star Company

Senator Borah says any nation that does not cut submarine building and consent to eliminate the "treacherous and pernicious" submarine, faces a terrible responsibility.

Borah is a fine man; the Senate needs fifty more like him. But he lives a long way from the ocean and from submarines. He may learn some day that he who would leave this country without submarine protection also faces a considerable responsibility. If a big fleet of ships should approach our shores and release flying machines to bombard coast cities, this country might wish it had kept "pernicious" submarines to wait for and sink that fleet.

The rifle is pernicious, the dum-dum bullet doubly so, but if Senator Borah went to the jungle where tigers lived he would want both rifle and dum-dums. This world is a jungle, our nation needs all the weapons it can get, the more "pernicious" the better.

Spaniards Rage Unwisely

Alcohol Rages, Efficiently

Copyright, 1921, Star Company.

Spanish newspapers rage because Spanish-speaking nations—old Spain and South America—are not represented at the Washington Arms Conference. Instead they should rejoice. They are not tangled up in ingeniously prepared complications. This country would be better off if it were attending to its own business, with reasonable economy and reasonable security, not asking advice from others as to its national rights.

"A woman and a man were added to the list of those killed by Christmas liquor." So it reads. Four had died already in the same city.

Scores were laid low by the deadly "whiskey handed out by holiday bootleggers, scores of them are likely to die."

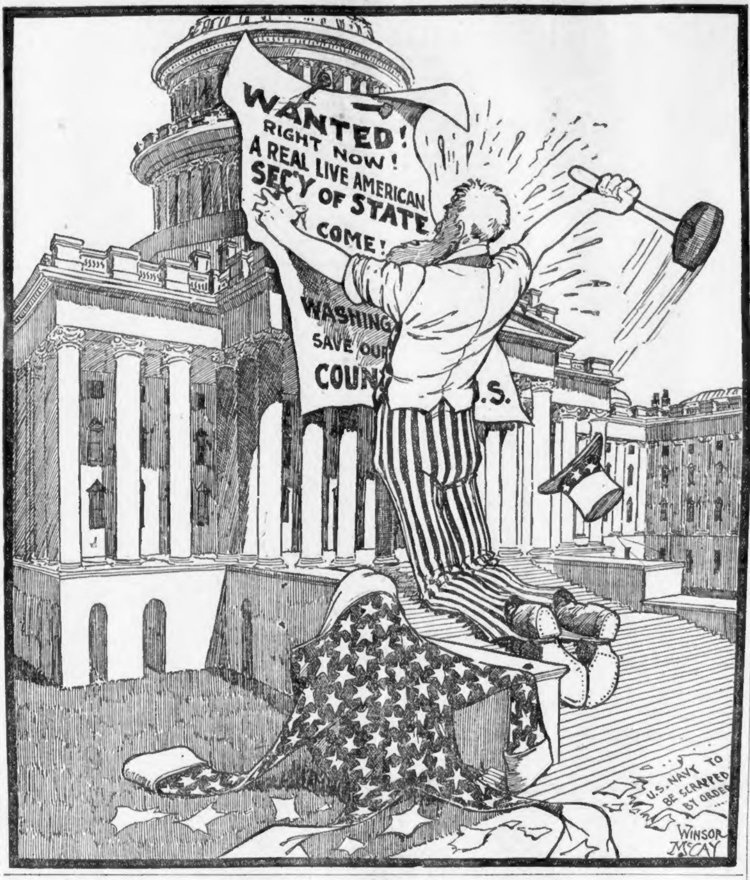
The Need of the Hour



VENUS MAY BE SENDING S. O. S. CALLS

Serviss Says Signals from Mars Would Have to Pass Directly Through the Field of the Sun to Reach the Earth

By Garrett P. Serviss,
Famous Astronomer and Writer on Scientific Subjects of Popular Interest.

I SEE that Mr. Marconi persists in the view that the wireless "signals" which during the past year he has noted, coming in on the ether with enormously long electric waves, have their origin far outside the earth and may be inspired by personages on the planet Mars who are testing this planet of ours to see whether it is inhabited by beings intelligent enough to respond to a call from space.

Whatever Mr. Marconi says on such a subject is worth serious consideration. I studied him many years ago during his earliest visits to America when he astonished the world by transmitting the first wireless messages across the Atlantic. I said then that he was that rare human phenomenon, "a practical dreamer." Napoleon was the supreme example of the practical dreamer. Edison belongs to the same intellectual genius. But with him I would set the "practical" in capitals and the "dreamer" in lower case, while with Marconi I should use a uniform typography for both words. This means simply that Edison dismisses his dreams unless they prove palpable in the laboratory, while Mr. Marconi is indulgent towards his.

Positions of Several Planets

I am glad to see that Mr. Marconi, while evidently holding to Mars as the most probable source of the "signals," admits that they might possibly come from Venus. If I were to express an opinion I should reverse this any say that they probably come from Venus, though they might possibly come from Mars.

I have just been calculating the relative positions of Mars, Venus and the Earth, from the varying distances between them, as well as their situation with regard to the sun, during the past nine months, and the results are interesting from the point of view of Marconi's observation on the mysterious "signals" supposed to come from outer space.

On April 22, 1921, Venus was in inferior conjunction with the sun, i. e., she was just between the earth and the sun, and about 26,490,000 miles away from us, which is some ten million miles nearer than Mars ever gets. At that time the Earth shone at midnight in the middle of the sky of Venus with a splendor never approached by any planet seen from the Earth. The Earth was then in the "full" phase for the Aphroditians, her round disk having a diameter of more than a minute of arc.

Our moon, then herself in the full phase, was almost in line behind the Earth, out in a few days she could have been seen with the naked eye apparently separating from the Earth like a little golden ball driven off from a larger one.

It need not be said that, in such circumstances, universal attention on Venus would be drawn to the Earth. And for months afterward the Earth, as seen by the inhabitants of Venus, was a conspicuous object in their evening sky, while the distance between the two planets did not become as much as 65,375,000 miles until July 1. During all this time, and indeed for several months longer, the sun was out of the way, leaving a free route through the ethereal part of the Earth.

Next let us look at the situation of Mars during the same period. On the 22nd of April, when Venus was nearest the earth, Mars was away beyond the sun, though not in line with it, at a distance from the earth exceeding 227,000,000 miles, or nearly nine times as far as Venus. And on the 28th of June, when Venus was very favorably situated with regard to the earth and the sun, and only 63,142,000 miles from the former, Mars was in superior conjunction with the sun, i. e., on the other side of the sun from the earth, and distant from us 242,000,000 miles.

Sun in Way of Mars

At that time not only could the earth not be seen at all from Mars, because the sun was between the two, but any electric signals sent from Mars toward the earth would have had to pass directly through the field of the sun and would even have encountered the sun itself as an obstacle lying right in their path. And this situation of Mars with regard to the earth and the sun was not greatly ameliorated until the middle of last Autumn when, as I understand, the phenomena noted by Mr. Marconi had begun to diminish in intensity. Even then the field of the sun continued to be more or less interposed. On October 3 Mars was in conjunction with Venus, but while Venus' distance was 126,000,000 miles, that of Mars was 226,000,000.

At the present time, when Mr. Marconi is reported to have said that the mysterious phenomena are not very noticeable, Mars is continually approaching the earth, while Venus is receding from it. Venus is gradually bringing the sun into line between her and the earth, while Mars, on the other hand, is approaching opposition when the earth will be between him and the sun, and consequently will again, as during his conjunction with the sun, cease to be visible to his inhabitants. On June 10, next, Mars will be conspicuous in midnight sky, the earth will be in line with him and the sun, and any electric signals sent out would have to go directly toward the sun in order to reach the earth. On the same date Venus will see the earth rise before the sun, but more than 128,000,000 miles away.

MANY SCHOOLS NOW REQUIRE GIRLS TO DRESS SIMPLY

THE girls of this generation are well worth studying. In the high schools of the entire country they are taking hold of the dress problem with no uncertain hand.

One high school in California has taken up a crusade against extravagant dress in school, and has made progress along the road of good sense. They have placed a ban on silk stockings, silk dresses and thin blouses, and have agreed that when a girl has an engagement after school demanding elaborate dress, she should bring her finery in the morning and change her clothes in the school dressing room before going to the place of her social entertainment.

In the case of one high school in New England showy and expensive clothes for school are plainly discouraged on the grounds of suitability and extravagance. Many a fond parent who hasn't the good sense or the plain courage to dress girls properly for school will be relieved to have the vexing matter taken out of her hands by the girls themselves.

The matter of suitability is better understood, possibly, in France than in other countries. No French mother would array her daughter for school in the wasteful and ungainly fashion so often seen here. The French schoolgirl's hats and shoes must be plain, though much time is spent in getting just the right effects in color and fashion.

It is refreshing to see in our girls the determination to dress in harmony with the requirements of good taste in school. No thin, slimsy material, no costly furs or other outer garments which anticipate the days when school days are left behind. Nothing of the gorgeous coloring affected by fashionable belles! For them the bright, clear colors of youth, and the easily kept clean gowns which are so becoming in the schoolroom.

Who does not delight to see a flock of schoolgirls coming along on their way to or from school, and all clad as they should be, simply and in good taste, which means, inexpensively.

Plaids and varieties of the day are fine, but there are limits to the vagaries. The beauty of simplicity is supreme. Nothing can make up for it. When school days are over, the perfect taste of schoolgirl simplicity can be imitated, but never realized.

So most of us would have girls, for every reason, dress simply and without straining for effect. After all, why give too much time to appearances just now? It is better to agree all together on a style of dress which is the best for all without regard to the wealth or means of those involved. Good taste is the thing to be striven for, and good taste is never extravagant, pretentious or ostentatious.

Somebody else wrote it—when Solomon had been dead five hundred years. And we're just finding out about it—so they say.

Dear me, how many things I've known all my life that turn out to be nothing but fairy tales.

There's Shakespeare—did he really dream Portia and Nerissa and the little candle that shed its beams so far in such a naughty world?

Did he envision Beatrice and Benedik and Romeo and Juliet? Were Queen Mab and her faithful messenger, Puck, born in his brain?

Or didn't he have a thing to do with it, Sweet Will Shakespeare? Was he just a common, ale-house gossip, without a thought beyond his bread and cheese and the few poor lines he spoke in the Strollers' Theatre?

Was it just some little nobody who stood behind him somewhere in the shadow and moved him about like a puppet?

Julius Caesar—who was he, really, when you come right down to it?

Long Nose, Slant Eyes

Cleopatra—they're beginning to say now that she had a long nose and slant eyes, and could never have been cast for the vamp in any really successful screen company. She was forty when Marc Antony left his Empress and his kingdom to follow her—how all the women of forty have hugged that idea to their pathetic hearts for all these years—and now they're telling us that Antony wasn't after Cleopatra at all, herself. What he wanted was her kingdom.

Elizabeth of England, red-headed, malicious, masculine—who can make a heroine of her?

Mary Queen of Scots—how we all wanted to be Mary when we played "Mirror." What! You don't know what I mean by "Mirror"?

You got all the lace scarfs and bits of illusion and artificial flowers in the neighborhood, and went to one of the other girls' rooms, when her mother had gone to the sewing circle, and you draped things over your head and powdered your face, and somebody played slow music on the piano, and you flitted wraithlike before the mirror and were Cleopatra, or Mary Queen of Scots, or Rowena, or the Lady of the Lake, or the Lady of Shalot—oh, it was lovely.

Only everybody always wanted to be Mary Stuart.

And now—they say she wasn't even pretty, even if she did have a way with her.

Our Washington

Last night I read a book about George Washington, and the men who wrote it said that Washington had a very bad temper and a rather ugly trick of swearing.

I'm afraid I liked George Washington a little bit better for hearing that—he was always so perfect before. You could admire him, but somehow you never felt close enough to him to love him. But if somebody's going to write a book and tells us that Washington cheated at cards, or pinched a penny before he spent it, I hope I'll never find the book.

It's bad enough to know that there isn't any Santa Claus—and that the rings in the grass are made not by fairies who dance in the moonlight, but by something perfectly commonplace and absolutely uninteresting.

Maybe King Solomon did not write the Song of Solomon. Perhaps the Queen of Sheba never came to visit him, but I don't thank the discoverers of these facts for bawling them from the housetops.

They make me feel as if the earth was trembling under my feet.

The first thing you know we shall be hearing that the prettiest girl in the chorus—the blonde on the end, in the sea-green costume, if you'd call it a costume—wears a wig and is a grandmother.

ALL MUST BE FIGHTERS FOR THE COMMON GOOD

By Dr. Charles Fleischer

IT is a fascinating speculation, in every land in which The Unknown Soldier has been honored, just who that unidentified fighter might be.

The imagination which chooses to dwell closely upon this inquiry must find it a rather gruesome object of interest. For the much-respected coffin is likely to contain only the fragments of a human frame, so horribly smashed and shattered as to be beyond recognition.

According to the Roman Ideal, the readiness to die for one's country is both sweet and fitting. Accordingly, the actual gift of one's life is sufficient proof of patriotism.

But the yielding at the same time of one's spirit and the surrender of one's body to the fiendish butchery of war is certainly the supreme sacrifice.

The selection of a nameless soldier fitly symbolizes the impersonal gift of ourselves which war demands. And the various countries, in such choice, do honor to the typical patriot and to the general readiness for selfless service which civilization needs, in peace and war alike.

That solemn celebration of all America on Armistice Day was, in a high sense, our common mourning for our common dead, and our sincere atonement for having expected and accepted these deaths at a time when the race should long have been beyond human sacrifice!

However, all this has been deeply felt by all of us, though only the few have been privileged to express it. And still we must add that, whatever may have been true to other soldiers in other lands, our Unknown was led to believe that he was fighting not merely as a patriot.

War to End War

Our unnamed soldier, representing the aroused soul of America, was fighting as a world citizen, the war to end war. His was an armed protest, in the democratic spirit, against autocratic force.

He fought and fell to establish the dominance of Law and Justice among the nations and within the nations.

All this must be remembered after the tumult and the shouting dies, so that, as Lincoln said at Gettysburg, "these dead shall not have died in vain!"

As we suggested at the beginning, it is a fascinating speculation, wherever that typical and representative fighter has been honored, just who the actual youth really was.

Thousands of mothers, the world over, must have found immeasurable comfort from the thought that the unidentified one was her very own, the fruit of her body and the gift of her spirit.

And they are right, each of them! As also those millions of mothers who know where the bodies of their boys lie buried are right to accept the respect paid to the Unknown Soldier as a personal tribute to their own dead sons.

We wish that the mothers of the survivors who are doomed to drag through life weakened minds and maimed bodies could have as deep satisfaction and as material proof that the living soldiers are honored and appreciated by those countries, at peace, whose visible arm they were in war!

That one soldier in every land, on whom the universal sentiment has centred, is really not unknown. He is easily discovered as the elemental human stuff—anybody—Everybody—Each of us, fighting the good fight, to give and to get, to do and to achieve, to be and to become.

A Spirit Excursion

It has done us good, in honoring one unnamed, to send our imagination on a spirit-excursion, to merge ourselves in the totality, and then to emerge with the sense of self-discovery; that EACH OF US IS THE UNKNOWN SOLDIER, the typical fighter, for ourselves and for civilization.

To America, that solemn participation in the universal honoring of the Unknown, was probably the most beautiful spiritual experience of our national career.

Its fruitage in self-respect and mutual respect and in a general reverence for the Average Person is beyond calculation. We shall all live in a higher expectancy of one another forever after!

There is a poetic symbolic custom observed among Orthodox Jews which is interesting in this connection. For 2,500 years they have been expecting their Messiah. At a certain moment in the domestic service of the Passover Eve, a hush falls upon the family circle as the door is opened, in hope that the Prophet Elijah might enter—invisibly, of course—and make recognizable announcement of the coming of the Messiah.

Any home, the humblest or the richest, might be thus honored!

So also, every expectant Jewish mother has reverenced her condition as the possible promise of the hoped-for Messiah.

That is the right attitude of mind towards every cradle; that it may hold a savior—and towards every adult; that he is at least a fighter for the Common Good.
